From the Director of the Folger Shakespeare Library

It is hard to imagine a world without Shakespeare. Since their composition four hundred years ago, Shakespeare’s plays and poems have traveled the globe, inviting those who see and read his works to make them their own.

Readers of the New Folger Editions are part of this ongoing process of “taking up Shakespeare,” finding our own thoughts and feelings in language that strikes us as old or unusual and, for that very reason, new. We still struggle to keep up with a writer who could think a mile a minute, whose words paint pictures that shift like clouds. These expertly edited texts are presented to the public as a resource for study, artistic adaptation, and enjoyment. By making the classic texts of the New Folger Editions available in electronic form as The Folger Shakespeare (formerly Folger Digital Texts), we place a trusted resource in the hands of anyone who wants them.

The New Folger Editions of Shakespeare’s plays, which are the basis for the texts realized here in digital form, are special because of their origin. The Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington, DC, is the single greatest documentary source of Shakespeare’s works. An unparalleled collection of early modern books, manuscripts, and artwork connected to Shakespeare, the Folger’s holdings have been consulted extensively in the preparation of these texts. The Editions also reflect the expertise gained through the regular performance of Shakespeare’s works in the Folger’s Elizabethan Theatre.

I want to express my deep thanks to editors Barbara Mowat and Paul Werstine for creating these indispensable editions of Shakespeare’s works, which incorporate the best of textual scholarship with a richness of commentary that is both inspired and engaging. Readers who want to know more about Shakespeare and his plays can follow the paths these distinguished scholars have tread by visiting the Folger either in-person or online, where a range of physical and digital resources exists to supplement the material in these texts. I commend to you these words, and hope that they inspire.

Textual Introduction
By Barbara Mowat and Paul Werstine

Until now, with the release of The Folger Shakespeare (formerly Folger Digital Texts), readers in search of a free online text of Shakespeare’s plays had to be content primarily with using the Moby™ Text, which reproduces a late-nineteenth century version of the plays. What is the difference? Many ordinary readers assume that there is a single text for the plays: what Shakespeare wrote. But Shakespeare’s plays were not published the way modern novels or plays are published today: as a single, authoritative text. In some cases, the plays have come down to us in multiple published versions, represented by various Quartos (Qq) and by the great collection put together by his colleagues in 1623, called the First Folio (F). There are, for example, three very different versions of Hamlet, two of King Lear, Henry V, Romeo and Juliet, and others. Editors choose which version to use as their base text, and then amend that text with words, lines or speech prefixes from the other versions that, in their judgment, make for a better or more accurate text.

Other editorial decisions involve choices about whether an unfamiliar word could be understood in light of other writings of the period or whether it should be changed; decisions about words that made it into Shakespeare’s text by accident through four hundred years of printings and misprinting; and even decisions based on cultural preference and taste. When the Moby™ Text was created, for example, it was deemed “improper” and “indecent” for Miranda to chastise Caliban for having attempted to rape her. (See The Tempest, I.2: “Abhorred slave,/Which any print of goodness wilt not take,/Being capable of all ill! I pitied thee…”). All Shakespeare editors at the time took the speech away from her and gave it to her father, Prospero.

The editors of the Moby™ Shakespeare produced their text long before scholars fully understood the proper grounds on which to make the thousands of decisions that Shakespeare editors face. The Folger Library Shakespeare Editions, on which the Folger Shakespeare texts depend, make this editorial process as nearly transparent as is possible, in contrast to older texts, like the Moby™, which hide editorial interventions. The reader of the Folger Shakespeare knows where the text has been altered because editorial interventions are signaled by square brackets (for example, from Othello: “[If she in chains of magic were not bound,]”), half-square brackets (for example, from Henry V: “With blood and sword and fire to win your right,”), or angle brackets (for example, from Hamlet: “O farewell, honest soldier. Who hath relieved you?”). At any point in the text, you can hover your cursor over a bracket for more information.

Because the Folger Shakespeare texts are edited in accord with twenty-first century knowledge about Shakespeare’s texts, the Folger here provides them to readers, scholars, teachers, actors, directors, and students, free of charge, confident of their quality as texts of the plays and pleased to be able to make this contribution to the study and enjoyment of Shakespeare.
Set during the Trojan War, Troilus and Cressida recounts the love affair of its title characters. Inside the besieged city of Troy, the Trojan prince Troilus is lovesick for Cressida. Cressida is drawn to Troilus, too, and her uncle, Pandarus, brings them together.

In the Greek camp outside, Cressida’s father, Calchas, asks that Cressida be brought to him in return for the help he has given the Greeks. The morning after the lovers’ night together, Cressida is exchanged for a Trojan prisoner and taken to the camp by the Greek warrior Diomedes.

The great Trojan warrior Hector, Troilus’s brother, engages in single combat with the Greek Ajax, a fight that ends inconclusively. Hector and Troilus join the Greeks for a feast. Cressida, meanwhile, is seduced by Diomedes.

Distraught at Cressida’s betrayal, Troilus fights Diomedes and others. Patroclus, favorite of the Greek warrior Achilles, dies in battle. Achilles fights with and loses to Hector, who is then, on Achilles’s orders, dishonorably slain. Grieving, Troilus and the other Trojans return to Troy.

Eternal reader, you have here a new play, never staled with the stage, never clapperclawed with the palms of the vulgar, and yet passing full of the palm comical, for it is a birth of your brain that never undertook anything comical vainly. And were but the vain names of comedies changed for the titles of commodities, or of plays for pleas, you should see all those grand censors, that now style them such vanities, flock to them for the main grace of their gravities, especially this author’s comedies, that are so framed to the life that they serve for the most common commentaries of all the actions of our lives, showing such a dexterity and power of wit that the most displeased with plays are pleased with his comedies. And all such dull and heavy-witted worldlings as were never capable of the wit of a comedy, coming by report of them to his representations, have found that wit there that they never found in themselves and have parted better witted than they came, feeling an edge of wit set upon them more than ever they dreamed they had brain to grind it on. So much and such savored salt of wit is in his comedies that they seem, for their height of pleasure, to be born in that sea that brought forth Venus. Amongst all there is none more witty than this; and had I time, I would comment upon it, though I know it needs not, for so much as will make you think your testern well bestowed, but for so much worth as even poor I know to be stuffed in it. It deserves such a labor as well as the best comedy in Terence or Plautus. And believe this, that when he is gone and his comedies out of sale, you will scramble for them and set up a new English Inquisition. Take this for a warning, and at the peril of your pleasure’s loss, and judgment’s, refuse not nor like this the less for not being sullied with the smoky breath of the multitude, but thank fortune for the scape it hath made amongst you, since by the grand possessors’ wills I believe you should have prayed for them rather than been prayed. And so I leave all such to be prayed for, for the states of their wits’ healths, that will not praise it. Vale.

PROLOGUE

In Troy there lies the scene. From isles of Greece
The princes orgulous, their high blood chafed,
Have to the port of Athens sent their ships
Fraught with the ministers and instruments
Of cruel war. Sixty and nine, that wore
Their crownets regal, from th’ Athenian bay
Put forth toward Phrygia, and their vow is made
To ransack Troy, within whose strong immures
The ravished Helen, Menelaus’ queen,
With wanton Paris sleeps; and that’s the quarrel.
To Tenedos they come,
And the deep-drawing barks do there disgorge
Their warlike fraughtage. Now on Dardan plains
The fresh and yet unbruised Greeks do pitch
Their brave pavilions. Priam’s six-gated city—
Dardan and Timbria, Helias, Chetas, Troien,
And Antenorides—with massy staples
And corresponive and fulfilling bolts,
Spar up the sons of Troy.

Now expectation, tickling skittish spirits
On one and other side, Trojan and Greek,
Sets all on hazard. And hither am I come,
A prologue armed, but not in confidence
Of author’s pen or actor’s voice, but suited
In like conditions as our argument,
To tell you, fair beholders, that our play
Leaps o’er the vaunt and firstlings of those broils,
Beginning in the middle, starting thence away
To what may be digested in a play.
Like, or find fault; do as your pleasures are.
Now, good or bad, ’tis but the chance of war.

(Scene 1)
Enter Pandarus and Troilus.

TROILUS

Call here my varlet; I’ll unarm again.
Why should I war without the walls of Troy
That find such cruel battle here within?
Each Trojan that is master of his heart,
Let him to field; Troilus, alas, hath none.

PANDARUS  Will this gear ne’er be mended?

TROILUS

The Greeks are strong and skilful to their strength,
Fierce to their skill, and to their fierceness valiant;
But I am weaker than a woman’s tear,
Tamer than sleep, fonder than ignorance,
Less valiant than the virgin in the night,
And skillless as unpracticed infancy.

PANDARUS  Well, I have told you enough of this. For my part, I’ll not meddle nor make no farther. He that will have a cake out of the wheat must tarry the grinding.

TROILUS  Have I not tarried?

PANDARUS  Ay, the grinding; but you must tarry the bolting.

TROILUS  Have I not tarried?

PANDARUS  Ay, the bolting; but you must tarry the leavening.

15
TROILUS   Still have I tarried.

PANDARUS   Ay, to the leavening; but here’s yet in the word hereafter the kneading, the making of the cake, the heating the oven, and the baking. Nay, you must stay the cooling too, or you may chance burn your lips.

TROILUS

Patience herself, what goddess e’er she be,
Doth lesser blench at suff’rance than I do.
At Priam’s royal table do I sit
And when fair Cressid comes into my thoughts—
So, traitor! “When’l she comes”? When is she thence?

PANDARUS   Well, she looked yesternight fairer than ever
I saw her look, or any woman else.

TROILUS

I was about to tell thee: when my heart,
As wedg’d with a sigh, would rive in twain,
Lest Hector or my father should perceive me,
I have, as when the sun doth light a-scorn,
Buried this sigh in wrinkle of a smile;
But sorrow that is couched in seeming gladness
Is like that mirth fate turns to sudden sadness.

PANDARUS   An her hair were not somewhat darker than Helen’s—well, go to—there were no more comparison between the women. But, for my part, she is my kinswoman; I would not, as they term it, praise her, but I would somebody had heard her talk yesterday, as I did. I will not dispraise your sister Cassandra’s wit, but—

TROILUS

O, Pandarus! I tell thee, Pandarus:
When I do tell thee there my hopes lie drowned,
Reply not in how many fathoms deep
They lie indrenched. I tell thee I am mad
In Cressid’s love. Thou answer’st she is fair;
Pourrest in the open ulcer of my heart
Her eyes, her hair, her cheek, her gait, her voice; Handiest in thy discourse—O—that her hand, In whose comparison all whites are ink Writing their own reproach, to whose soft seizure The cygnet’s down is harsh, and spirit of sense Hard as the palm of plowman. This thou tell’st me, As true thou tell’st me, when I say I love her. But, saying thus, instead of oil and balm Thou lay’st in every gash that love hath given me The knife that made it.

PANDARUS I speak no more than truth.

TROILUS Thou dost not speak so much.

PANDARUS Faith, I’ll not meddle in it. Let her be as she is. If she be fair, ’tis the better for her; an she be not, she has the mends in her own hands.

TROILUS Good Pandarus—how now, Pandarus?

PANDARUS I have had my labor for my travail, ill thought on of her, and ill thought (on) of you; gone between and between, but small thanks for my labor.

TROILUS What, art thou angry, Pandarus? What, with me?

PANDARUS Because she’s kin to me, therefore she’s not so fair as Helen; an she were (not) kin to me, she would be as fair o’ Friday as Helen is on Sunday. But what (care) I? I care not an she were a blackamoor; ’tis all one to me.

TROILUS Say I she is not fair?

PANDARUS I do not care whether you do or no. She’s a fool to stay behind her father. Let her to the Greeks, and so I’ll tell her the next time I see her. For my part, I’ll meddle nor make no more i’ th’ matter.

TROILUS Pandarus—

PANDARUS Not I.

TROILUS Sweet Pandarus—

PANDARUS Pray you speak no more to me. I will leave all as I found it, and there an end. He exits.
Sound alarum.

TROILUS
Peace, you ungracious clamors! Peace, rude sounds!
Fools on both sides! Helen must needs be fair
When with your blood you daily paint her thus.
I cannot fight upon this argument;
It is too starved a subject for my sword.
But Pandarus—O gods, how do you plague me!
I cannot come to Cressid but by Pandar,
And he’s as tetchy to be wooed to woo
As she is stubborn-chaste against all suit.
Tell me, Apollo, for thy Daphnes love,
What Cressid is, what Pandar, and what we.
Her bed is India; there she lies, a pearl.
Between our Ilium and where she resides,
Let it be called the wild and wand’ring flood,
Ourself the merchant, and this sailing Pandar
Our doubtful hope, our convoy, and our bark.

Alarum. Enter Aeneas.

AENEAS
How now, Prince Troilus? Wherefore not afield?

TROILUS
Because not there. This woman’s answer sorts,
For womanish it is to be from thence.
What news, Aeneas, from the field today?

AENEAS
That Paris is returnèd home, and hurt.

TROILUS
By whom, Aeneas?

AENEAS
Troilus, by Menelaus.

TROILUS
Let Paris bleed. ’Tis but a scar to scorn;
Paris is gored with Menelaus’ horn.

Alarum.
AENEAS
   Hark what good sport is out of town today!

TROILUS
   Better at home, if “would I might” were “may.”
   But to the sport abroad. Are you bound thither?

AENEAS
   In all swift haste.

TROILUS
   Come, go we then together.

They exit.

Scene 2
Enter Cressida and her man [Alexander.]

CRESSIDA
   Who were those went by?

ALEXANDER
   Queen Hecuba and Helen.

CRESSIDA
   And whither go they?

ALEXANDER
   Up to the eastern tower,
   Whose height commands as subject all the vale,
   To see the battle. Hector, whose patience
   Is as a virtue fixed, today was moved.
   He chid Andromache and struck his armorer;
   And, like as there were husbandry in war,
   Before the sun rose he was harnessed light,
   And to the field goes he, where every flower
   Did as a prophet weep what it foresaw
   In Hector’s wrath.

CRESSIDA
   What was his cause of anger?

ALEXANDER
   The noise goes, this: there is among the Greeks
   A lord of Trojan blood, nephew to Hector.
   They call him Ajax.

CRESSIDA
   Good; and what of him?
ALEXANDER

They say he is a very man per se
And stands alone.

CRESSIDA  So do all men unless (they) are drunk, sick, or have no legs.

ALEXANDER  This man, lady, hath robbed many beasts of their particular additions. He is as valiant as the lion, churlish as the bear, slow as the elephant, a man into whom nature hath so crowded humors that his valor is crushed into folly, his folly sauced with discretion. There is no man hath a virtue that he hath not a glimpse of, nor any man an attain but he carries some stain of it. He is melancholy without cause and merry against the hair. He hath the joints of everything, but everything so out of joint that he is a gouty Briareus, many hands and no use, or purblind Argus, all eyes and no sight.

CRESSIDA  But how should this man that makes me smile make Hector angry?

ALEXANDER  They say he yesterday coped Hector in the battle and struck him down, the disdain and shame whereof hath ever since kept Hector fasting and waking.

〈Enter Pandarus.〉 〉

CRESSIDA  Who comes here?

ALEXANDER  Madam, your Uncle Pandarus.

CRESSIDA  Hector’s a gallant man.

ALEXANDER  As may be in the world, lady.

PANDARUS  What’s that? What’s that?

CRESSIDA  Good morrow, Uncle Pandarus.

PANDARUS  Good morrow, Cousin Cressid. What do you talk of?— Good morrow, Alexander.—How do you, cousin? When were you at Ilium?

CRESSIDA  This morning, uncle.
PANDARUS  What were you talking of when I came?
    Was Hector armed and gone ere you came to Ilium? Helen was not up, was she?
CRESSIDA  Hector was gone, but Helen was not up.
PANDARUS  E’en so. Hector was stirring early.
CRESSIDA  That were we talking of, and of his anger.
PANDARUS  Was he angry?
CRESSIDA  So he says here.
PANDARUS  True, he was so. I know the cause too. He’ll lay about him today, I can tell them that; and there’s Troilus will not come far behind him. Let them take heed of Troilus, I can tell them that too.
CRESSIDA  What, is he angry too?
PANDARUS  Who, Troilus? Troilus is the better man of the two.
CRESSIDA  O Jupiter, there’s no comparison.
PANDARUS  What, not between Troilus and Hector? Do you know a man if you see him?
CRESSIDA  Ay, if I ever saw him before and knew him.
PANDARUS  Well, I say Troilus is Troilus.
CRESSIDA  Then you say as I say, for I am sure he is not
    Hector.
PANDARUS  No, nor Hector is not Troilus in some degrees.
CRESSIDA  ’Tis just to each of them; he is himself.
PANDARUS  Himself? Alas, poor Troilus, I would he were.
CRESSIDA  So he is.
PANDARUS  Condition I had gone barefoot to India.
CRESSIDA  He is not Hector.
PANDARUS  Himself? No, he’s not himself. Would he were himself! Well, the gods are above. Time must friend or end. Well, Troilus, well, I would my heart were in her body. No, Hector is not a better man than Troilus.
CRESSIDA  Excuse me.
PANDARUS  He is elder.
CRESSIDA  Pardon me, pardon me.
PANDARUS    Th’ other’s not come to ’t. You shall tell me another tale when th’ other’s come to ’t. Hector shall not have his ſwit† this year.
CRESSIDA    He shall not need it, if he have his own.  90
PANDARUS    Nor his qualities.
CRESSIDA    No matter.
PANDARUS    Nor his beauty.
CRESSIDA    ’Twould not become him. His own ’s better.  95
PANDARUS    You have no judgment, niece. Helen herself swore th’ other day that Troilus, for a brown favor—for so ’tis, I must confess—not brown neither—CRESSIDA    No, but brown.
PANDARUS    Faith, to say truth, brown and not brown. 100
CRESSIDA    To say the truth, true and not true.
PANDARUS    She praised his complexion above Paris’.
CRESSIDA    Why, Paris hath color enough.
PANDARUS    So he has.
CRESSIDA    Then Troilus should have too much. If she praised him above, his complexion is higher than his. He having color enough, and the other higher, is too flaming a praise for a good complexion. I had as lief Helen’s golden tongue had commended
             Troilus for a copper nose.  105
CRESSIDA    I swear to you, I think Helen loves him better than Paris.
PANDARUS    Then she’s a merry Greek indeed.  110
CRESSIDA    Nay, I am sure she does. She came to him th’ other day into the compassed window—and you know he has not past three or four hairs on his chin—  115
CRESSIDA    Indeed, a tapster’s arithmetic may soon bring his particulars therein to a total.
PANDARUS    Why, he is very young, and yet will he within three pound (lift) as much as his brother Hector.  120
CRESSIDA    Is he so young a man and so old a lifter?
PANDARUS  But to prove to you that Helen loves him: she came and puts me her white hand to his cloven chin—
CRESSIDA  Juno have mercy! How came it cloven?
PANDARUS  Why, you know 'tis dimpled. I think his smiling becomes him better than any man in all Phrygia.
CRESSIDA  O, he smiles valiantly.
PANDARUS  Does he not?
CRESSIDA  O yes, an 'twere a cloud in autumn.
PANDARUS  Why, go to, then. But to prove to you that Helen loves Troilus—CRESSIDA  Troilus will stand to the proof if you'll prove it so.
PANDARUS  Troilus? Why, he esteems her no more than
    I esteem an addle egg.
CRESSIDA  If you love an addle egg as well as you love an idle head, you would eat chickens i' th' shell.
PANDARUS  I cannot choose but laugh to think how she tickled his chin. Indeed, she has a marvellous white hand, I must needs confess—
CRESSIDA  Without the rack.
PANDARUS  And she takes upon her to spy a white hair on his chin.
CRESSIDA  Alas, poor chin! Many a wart is richer.
PANDARUS  But there was such laughing! Queen Hecuba laughed that her eyes ran o’er—
CRESSIDA  With millstones.
PANDARUS  And Cassandra laughed—CRESSIDA  But there was a more temperate fire under the pot of her eyes. Did her eyes run o’er too?
PANDARUS  And Hector laughed.
CRESSIDA  At what was all this laughing?
PANDARUS  Marry, at the white hair that Helen spied on Troilus’ chin.
CRESSIDA An ’t had been a green hair, I should have laughed too.

PANDARUS They laughed not so much at the hair as at his pretty answer.

CRESSIDA What was his answer?

PANDARUS Quoth she “Here’s but two-and-fifty hairs on your chin, and one of them is white.”

CRESSIDA This is her question.

PANDARUS That’s true, make no question of that. “Two-and-fifty hairs,” quoth he, “and one white. That white hair is my father, and all the rest are his sons.” “Jupiter!” quoth she, “which of these hairs is Paris, my husband?” “The forked one,” quoth he. “Pluck ’t out, and give it him.” But there was such laughing, and Helen so blushed, and Paris so chafed, and all the rest so laughed that it passed. So let it now, for it has been a great while going by.

PANDARUS Well, cousin, I told you a thing yesterday. Think on ’t.

CRESSIDA So I do.

PANDARUS I’ll be sworn ’tis true. He will weep you an ’twere a man born in April.

CRESSIDA And I’ll spring up in his tears an ’twere a nettle against May. Sound a retreat.

PANDARUS Hark, they are coming from the field. Shall we stand up here and see them as they pass toward Ilium? Good niece, do, sweet niece Cressida.

CRESSIDA At your pleasure.

PANDARUS Here, here, here’s an excellent place. Here we may see most bravely. I’ll tell you them all by their names as they pass by, but mark Troilus above the rest.

[They cross the stage; Alexander exits.]

CRESSIDA Speak not so loud.
Enter Aeneas and crosses the stage.

PANDARUS That’s Aeneas. Is not that a brave man? He’s one of the flowers of Troy, I can tell you. But mark Troilus; you shall see anon.

Enter Antenor and crosses the stage.

CRESSIDA Who’s that?

PANDARUS That’s Antenor. He has a shrewd wit, I can tell you, and he’s (a) man good enough. He’s one o’ th’ soundest judgments in Troy whosoever; and a proper man of person. When comes Troilus? I’ll show you Troilus anon. If he see me, you shall see him nod at me.

CRESSIDA Will he give you the nod?

PANDARUS You shall see.

CRESSIDA If he do, the rich shall have more.

Enter Hector and crosses the stage.

PANDARUS That’s Hector, that, that, look you, that. There’s a fellow!—Go thy way, Hector!—There’s a brave man, niece. O brave Hector! Look how he looks. There’s a countenance! Is ’t not a brave man?

CRESSIDA O, a brave man!

PANDARUS Is he not? It does a (man’s) heart good. Look you what hacks are on his helmet. Look you yonder, do you see? Look you there. There’s no jesting; there’s laying on, take ’t off who will, as they say. There be hacks.

CRESSIDA Be those with swords?

PANDARUS Swords, anything, he cares not. An the devil come to him, it’s all one. By God’s lid, it does one’s heart good.

Enter Paris and crosses the stage.

Yonder comes Paris, yonder comes Paris! Look you yonder, niece. Is ’t not a gallant man too? Is ’t not?
Why, this is brave now. Who said he came hurt home today? He’s not hurt. Why, this will do Helen’s heart good now, ha? Would I could see Troilus now! You shall see Troilus anon.

Enter Helenus \(\text{and crosses the stage.}\)

CRESSIDA Who’s that?
PANDARUS That’s Helenus. I marvel where Troilus is.

That’s Helenus. I think he went not forth today.

That’s Helenus.

CRESSIDA Can Helenus fight, uncle?
PANDARUS Helenus? No. Yes, he’ll fight indifferent well. I marvel where Troilus is. Hark, do you not hear the people cry “Troilus”? Helenus is a priest.

Enter Troilus \(\text{and crosses the stage.}\)

CRESSIDA What sneaking fellow comes yonder?
PANDARUS Where? Yonder? That’s Deiphobus. ’Tis Troilus! There’s a man, niece. Hem! Brave Troilus, the prince of chivalry!

Peace, for shame, peace.

Mark him. Note him. O brave Troilus! Look well upon him, niece. Look you how his sword is bloodied and his helm more hacked than Hector’s, and how he looks, and how he goes. O admirable youth! He never saw three and twenty.—Go thy way, Troilus; go thy way!—Had I a sister were a Grace, or a daughter a goddess, he should take his choice. O admirable man! Paris? Paris is dirt to him; and I warrant Helen, to change, would give an eye to boot.

\(\langle \text{Enter Common Soldiers \(\text{and cross the stage.}\rangle \)\)

CRESSIDA Here comes more.
PANDARUS Asses, fools, dolts, chaff and bran, chaff and bran, porridge after meat. I could live and die in the eyes of Troilus. Ne’er look, ne’er look; the eagles are gone. Crows and daws, crows and daws!
I had rather be such a man as Troilus than Agamemnon and all Greece.

CRESSIDA There is amongst the Greeks Achilles, a better man than Troilus.
PANDARUS Achilles? A drayman, a porter, a very camel!
CRESSIDA Well, well.
PANDARUS “Well, well”? Why, have you any discretion?
Have you any eyes? Do you know what a man is? Is not birth, beauty, good shape, discourse, manhood, learning, gentleness, virtue, youth, liberality and such-like the spice and salt that season a man?

CRESSIDA Ay, a minced man; and then to be baked with no date in the pie, for then the man’s date is out.
PANDARUS You are such a woman a man knows not at what ward you lie.
CRESSIDA Upon my back to defend my belly, upon my wit to defend my wiles, upon my secrecy to defend mine honesty, my mask to defend my beauty, and you to defend all these; and at all these wards I lie, at a thousand watches.
PANDARUS Say one of your watches.
CRESSIDA Nay, I’ll watch you for that, and that’s one of the chiepest of them too. If I cannot ward what I would not have hit, I can watch you for telling how I took the blow—unless it swell past hiding, and then it’s past watching.
PANDARUS You are such another!

Enter [Troilus’s] Boy.

BOY Sir, my lord would instantly speak with you.
PANDARUS Where?

BOY At your own house. There he unarms him.
PANDARUS Good boy, tell him I come. [Boy exits.]
Troilus and Cressida

CRESSIDA  Adieu, uncle.
PANDARUS  I will be with you, niece, by and by.  285
CRESSIDA  To bring, uncle?
PANDARUS  Ay, a token from Troilus.
CRESSIDA  By the same token, you are a bawd.

(Pandarus exits.)

Words, vows, gifts, tears, and love’s full sacrifice
He offers in another’s enterprise;
But more in Troilus thousandfold I see
Than in the glass of Pandar’s praise may be.
Yet hold I off. Women are angels, wooing;
Things won are done; joy’s soul lies in the doing.
That she beloved knows naught that knows not this:  295
Men prize the thing ungained more than it is.
That she was never yet that ever knew
Love got so sweet as when desire did sue.
Therefore this maxim out of love I teach:
Achievement is command; ungained, beseech.

Then though my heart’s content firm love doth bear,
Nothing of that shall from mine eyes appear.

Scene 3

(Sennet.) Enter Agamemnon, Nestor, Ulysses, Diomedes, Menelaus, with others.

AGAMEMNON

Princes, what grief hath set (the) jaundice o’er your cheeks?
The ample proposition that hope makes
In all designs begun on Earth below
Fails in the promised largeness. Checks and disasters
Grow in the veins of actions highest reared,
As knots, by the conflux of meeting sap,
Infests the sound pine and diverts his grain
Tortive and errant from his course of growth.
Nor, princes, is it matter new to us
That we come short of our suppose so far
That after seven years’ siege yet Troy walls stand,
Sith (every) action that hath gone before,
Whereof we have record, trial did draw
Bias and thwart, not answering the aim
And that unbodied figure of the thought
That gave ’t surmisèd shape. Why then, you princes,
Do you with cheeks abashed behold our works
And call them shames, which are indeed naught else
But the protractive trials of great Jove
To find persistive constancy in men?
The fineness of which metal is not found
In Fortune’s love; for then the bold and coward,
The wise and fool, the artist and unread,
The hard and soft seem all affined and kin.
But in the wind and tempest of her frown,
Distinction, with a broad and powerful fan,
Puffing at all, winnows the light away,
And what hath mass or matter by itself
Lies rich in virtue and unmingled.

NESTOR
With due observance of (thy) godlike seat,
Great Agamemnon, Nestor shall apply
Thy latest words. In the reproof of chance
Lies the true proof of men. The sea being smooth,
How many shallow bauble boats dare sail
Upon her (patient) breast, making their way
With those of nobler bulk!
But let the ruffian Boreas once enrage
The gentle Thetis, and anon behold
The strong-ribbed bark through liquid mountains cut,
Bounding between the two moist elements,
Like Perseus’ horse. Where’s then the saucy boat
Whose weak untimbered sides but even now
Corrivaled greatness? Either to harbor fled
Or made a toast for Neptune. Even so Doth valor's show and valor's worth divide
In storms of Fortune. For in her ray and brightness
The herd hath more annoyance by the breese
Than by the tiger, but when the splitting wind
Makes flexible the knees of knotted oaks,
And flies [flee] under shade, why, then the thing of courage,
As roused with rage, with rage doth sympathize,
And with an accent tuned in selfsame key [Retorts] to chiding Fortune.

ULYSES

Agamemnon,
Thou great commander, nerves and bone of Greece,
Heart of our numbers, soul and only sprite,
In whom the tempers and the minds of all
Should be shut up, hear what Ulysses speaks.
Besides th' applause and approbation,
The which, ([to Agamemnon]) most mighty for thy place and sway,
([To Nestor]) And thou most reverend for (thy) stretched-out life,
I give to both your speeches, which were such
As Agamemnon and the hand of Greece
Should hold up high in brass; and such again
As venerable Nestor, hatched in silver,
Should with a bond of air, strong as the axletree
On which heaven rides, knit all the Greekish ears
To his experienced tongue, yet let it please both,
Thou great, and wise, to hear Ulysses speak.

[AGAMEMNON]

Speak, Prince of Ithaca, and be 't of less expect
That matter needless, of importless burden,
Divide thy lips than we are confident
When rank Thersites opes his mastic jaws
We shall hear music, wit, and oracle.
TROILUS and CRESSIDA

ACT 1. SC. 3

ULYSES

Troy, yet upon his basis, had been down,
And the great Hector’s sword had lacked a master
But for these instances:
The specialty of rule hath been neglected,
And look how many Grecian tents do stand
Hollow upon this plain, so many hollow factions.
When that the general is not like the hive
To whom the foragers shall all repair,
What honey is expected? Degree being vizarded,
Th’ unworthiest shows as fairly in the mask.
The heavens themselves, the planets, and this center
Observe degree, priority, and place,
Insisture, course, proportion, season, form,
Office, and custom, in all line of order.
And therefore is the glorious planet Sol
In noble eminence enthroned and sphered
Amidst the other, whose med’cinable eye
Corrects the influence of evil planets,
And posts, like the commandment of a king,
Sans check, to good and bad. But when the planets
In evil mixture to disorder wander,
What plagues and what portents, what mutiny,
What raging of the sea, shaking of Earth,
Commotion in the winds, frights, changes, horrors
Divert and crack, rend and deracinate
The unity and married calm of states
Quite from their fixture! O, when degree is shaked,
Which is the ladder of all high designs,
The enterprise is sick. How could communities,
Degrees in schools and brotherhoods in cities,
Peaceful commerce from dividable shores,
The primogenity and due of birth,
Prerogative of age, crowns, scepters, laurels,
But by degree stand in authentic place?
Take but degree away, untune that string,
And hark what discord follows. Each thing (meets)
In mere oppugnancy. The bounded waters
Should lift their bosoms higher than the shores
And make a sop of all this solid globe;
Strength should be lord of imbecility,
And the rude son should strike his father dead;
Force should be right, or, rather, right and wrong,
Between whose endless jar justice resides,
Should lose their names, and so should justice too.
Then everything (includes) itself in power,
Power into will, will into appetite,
And appetite, an universal wolf,
So doubly seconded with will and power,
Must make perforce an universal prey
And last eat up himself. Great Agamemnon,
This chaos, when degree is suffocate,
Follows the choking.
And this neglection of degree it is
That by a pace goes backward, with a purpose
It hath to climb. The General’s disdained
By him one step below, he by the next,
That next by him beneath; so every step,
Exampled by the first pace that is sick
Of his superior, grows to an envious fever
Of pale and bloodless emulation.
And ’tis this fever that keeps Troy on foot,
Not her own sinews. To end a tale of length,
Troy in our weakness stands, not in her strength.

Most wisely hath Ulysses here discovered
The fever whereof all our power is sick.

The nature of the sickness found, Ulysses,
What is the remedy?

The great Achilles, whom opinion crowns
The sinew and the forehand of our host,
Having his ear full of his airy fame,
Grows dainty of his worth and in his tent
Lies mocking our designs. With him Patroclus,
Upon a lazy bed, the live-long day
Breaks scurril jests,
And with ridiculous and silly action,
Which, slanderer, he imitation calls,
He pageants us. Sometime, great Agamemnon,
Thy topless deputation he puts on,
And, like a strutting player whose conceit
Lies in his hamstring and doth think it rich
To hear the wooden dialogue and sound
'Twixt his stretched footing and the scaffollage,
Such to-be-pitied and o'erwrested seeming
He acts thy greatness in; and when he speaks,
'Tis like a chime a-mending, with terms (unsquared)
Which from the tongue of roaring Typhon dropped
Would seem hyperboles. At this fusty stuff,
The large Achilles, on his pressed bed lolling,
From his deep chest laughs out a loud applause,
Cries “Excellent! ’Tis Agamemnon right.
Now play me Nestor; hem and stroke thy beard,
As he being dressed to some oration.”
That’s done, as near as the extremest ends
Of parallels, as like as Vulcan and his wife;
Yet god Achilles still cries “Excellent!
’Tis Nestor right. Now play him me, Patroclus, Arming to answer in a night alarm.”
And then, forsooth, the faint defects of age
Must be the scene of mirth—to cough and spit,
And, with a palsy fumbling on his gorget,
Shake in and out the rivet. And at this sport
Sir Valor dies, cries “O, enough, Patroclus,
Or give me ribs of steel! I shall split all
In pleasure of my spleen.” And in this fashion,
All our abilities, gifts, natures, shapes,
Several and generals of grace exact,
Achievements, plots, orders, preventions,
Excitements to the field, or speech for truce,
Success or loss, what is or is not, serves
As stuff for these two to make paradoxes.

NESTOR

And in the imitation of these twain,
Who, as Ulysses says, opinion crowns
With an imperial voice, many are infect:
Ajax is grown self-willed and bears his head
In such a rein, in full as proud a place
As broad Achilles; keeps his tent like him,
Makes factious feasts; rails on our state of war,
Bold as an oracle, and sets Thersites—
A slave whose gall coins slanders like a mint—
To match us in comparisons with dirt,
To weaken (and) discredit our exposure,
How rank soever rounded in with danger.

ULYSSES

They tax our policy and call it cowardice,
Count wisdom as no member of the war,
Forestall prescience, and esteem no act
But that of hand. The still and mental parts
That do contrive how many hands shall strike
When fitness calls them on and know by measure
Of their observant toil the enemy’s weight—
Why, this hath not a fingers dignity.
They call this bed-work, mapp’ry, closet war;
So that the ram that batters down the wall,
For the great swinge and rudeness of his poise,
They place before his hand that made the engine
Or those that with the fineness of their souls
By reason guide his execution.

NESTOR

Let this be granted, and Achilles’ horse
Makes many Thetis’ sons.

(Tucket.)

MENELAUS From Troy.

(*Enter Aeneas, with a Trumpeter.)

AGAMEMNON What would you 'fore our tent?

AENEAS Is this great Agamemnon’s tent, I pray you?

AGAMEMNON Even this.

AENEAS May one that is a herald and a prince

Do a fair message to his kingly eyes?

AGAMEMNON With surety stronger than Achilles’ arm

'Fore all the Greekish host, which with one voice

Call Agamemnon head and general.

AENEAS Fair leave and large security. How may

A stranger to those most imperial looks

Know them from eyes of other mortals?

AGAMEMNON How?

AENEAS Ay. I ask that I might waken reverence

And bid the cheek be ready with a blush

Modest as morning when she coldly eyes

The youthful Phoebus.

Which is that god in office, guiding men?

Which is the high and mighty Agamemnon?

AGAMEMNON This Trojan scorns us, or the men of Troy

Are ceremonious courtiers.

AENEAS Courtiers as free, as debonair, unarmed,

As bending angels—that’s their fame in peace.

But when they would seem soldiers, they have galls,
Good arms, strong joints, true swords, and—great Jove’s accord—
Nothing so full of heart. But peace, Aeneas.
Peace, Trojan. Lay thy finger on thy lips.
The worthiness of praise distains his worth
If that the praised himself bring the praise forth.
But what the repining enemy commends,
That breath fame blows; that praise, sole pure, transcends.

AGAMEMNON
Sir, you of Troy, call you yourself Aeneas?
AENEAS Ay, Greek, that is my name.
AGAMEMNON What’s your affair, I pray you?
AENEAS Sir, pardon. ’Tis for Agamemnon’s ears.
AGAMEMNON He hears naught privately that comes from Troy.
AENEAS Nor I from Troy come not to whisper with him.
I bring a trumpet to awake his ear,
To set his sense on the attentive bent,
And then to speak.
AGAMEMNON Speak frankly as the wind;
It is not Agamemnon’s sleeping hour.
That thou shalt know, Trojan, he is awake,
He tells thee so himself.
AENEAS Trumpet, blow loud!
Send thy brass voice through all these lazy tents;
And every Greek of mettle, let him know
What Troy means fairly shall be spoke aloud.

Sound trumpet.

We have, great Agamemnon, here in Troy
A prince called Hector—Priam is his father—
Who in this dull and long-continued truce
Is resty grown. He bade me take a trumpet
And to this purpose speak: “Kings, princes, lords,
If there be one among the fair’st of Greece
That holds his honor higher than his ease,
That seeks his praise more than he fears his peril,
That knows his valor and knows not his fear,
That loves his mistress more than in confession
With truant vows to her own lips he loves
And dare avow her beauty and her worth
In other arms than hers—to him this challenge.
Hector, in view of Trojans and of Greeks,
Shall make it good, or do his best to do it,
He hath a lady wiser, fairer, truer
Than ever Greek did couple in his arms
And will tomorrow with his trumpet call,
Midway between your tents and walls of Troy,
To rouse a Grecian that is true in love.
If any come, Hector shall honor him;
If none, he’ll say in Troy when he retires
The Grecian dames are sunburnt and not worth
The splinter of a lance.” Even so much.

AGAMEMNON

This shall be told our lovers, Lord Aeneas.
If none of them have soul in such a kind,
We left them all at home. But we are soldiers,
And may that soldier a mere recreant prove
That means not, hath not, or is not in love!
If then one is, or hath, (or) means to be,
That one meets Hector. If none else, I am he.

NESTOR, τo Aeneas

Tell him of Nestor, one that was a man
When Hector’s grandsire sucked. He is old now,
But if there be not in our Grecian host
A noble man that hath (one) spark of fire
To answer for his love, tell him from me
I’ll hide my silver beard in a gold beaver
And in my vambrace put my withered brawns
And, meeting him, (will) tell him that my lady
Was fairer than his grandam and as chaste
As may be in the world. His youth in flood,
I’ll prove this troth with my three drops of blood.

AENEAS

Now heavens forfend such scarcity of youth!

ULYSSES  Amen.

〈AGAMEMNON〉

Fair Lord Aeneas, let me touch your hand.
To our pavilion shall I lead you, sir.
Achilles shall have word of this intent;
So shall each lord of Greece from tent to tent.
Yourself shall feast with us before you go,
And find the welcome of a noble foe.

〈All but Ulysses and Nestor exit.〉

ULYSSES  Nestor.

NESTOR  What says Ulysses?

ULYSSES  I have a young conception in my brain;
Be you my time to bring it to some shape.

NESTOR  What is ’t?

ULYSSES  〈This ’tis:〉

Blunt wedges rive hard knots; the seeded pride
That hath to this maturity blown up
In rank Achilles must or now be cropped
Or, shedding, breed a nursery of like evil
To overbulk us all.

NESTOR  Well, and how?

ULYSSES  This challenge that the gallant Hector sends,
However it is spread in general name,
Relates in purpose only to Achilles.

NESTOR  True. The purpose is perspicuous as substance
Whose grossness little characters sum up;
And, in the publication, make no strain
But that Achilles, were his brain as barren
As banks of Libya—though, Apollo knows,
'tis dry enough—will, with great speed of judgment,
Ay, with celerity, find Hector's purpose
Pointing on him.

And wake him to the answer, think you?

Why, 'tis most meet. Who may you else oppose
That can from Hector bring his honor off
If not Achilles? Though 't be a sportful combat,
Yet in the trial much opinion dwells,
For here the Trojans taste our dear'st repute
With their fin'st palate. And, trust to me, Ulysses,
Our imputation shall be oddly poised
In this vile action. For the success,
Although particular, shall give a scantling
Of good or bad unto the general;
And in such indexes, although small pricks
To their subsequent volumes, there is seen
The baby figure of the giant mass
Of things to come at large. It is supposed
He that meets Hector issues from our choice;
And choice, being mutual act of all our souls,
Makes merit her election and doth boil,
As 'twere from forth us all, a man distilled
Out of our virtues, who, miscarrying,
What heart receives from hence a conquering part
To steel a strong opinion to themselves?—
(Which entertained, limbs are his instruments,
In no less working than are swords and bows
Directive by the limbs.)

Give pardon to my speech: therefore 'tis meet
Achilles meet not Hector. Let us like merchants
First show foul wares and think perchance they'll sell;
If not, the luster of the better shall exceed
By showing the worse first. Do not consent
That ever Hector and Achilles meet,
For both our honor and our shame in this
Are dogged with two strange followers.

NESTOR
I see them not with my old eyes. What are they?

ULYSSES
What glory our Achilles shares from Hector,
Were he not proud, we all should share with him;
But he already is too insolent,
And it were better parch in Afric sun
Than in the pride and salt scorn of his eyes
Should he scape Hector fair. If he were foiled,
Why then do we our main opinion crush
In taint of our best man. No, make a lott’ry,
And, by device, let blockish Ajax draw
The sort to fight with Hector. Among ourselves
Give him allowance for the better man,
For that will physic the great Myrmidon,
Who broils in loud applause, and make him fall
His crest that prouder than blue Iris bends.
If the dull brainless Ajax come safe off,
We’ll dress him up in voices; if he fail,
Yet go we under our opinion still
That we have better men. But, hit or miss,
Our project’s life this shape of sense assumes:
Ajax employed plucks down Achilles’ plumes.

NESTOR
Now, Ulysses, I begin to relish thy advice,
And I will give a taste thereof forthwith
To Agamemnon. Go we to him straight.
Two curs shall tame each other; pride alone
Must (tar) the mastiffs on, as ’twere a bone.

They exit.
Enter Ajax and Thersites.

AJAX Thersites!

Thersites! Agamemnon—how if he had boils, full, all over, generally?

AJAX Thersites!

Thersites! And those boils did run? Say so. Did not the general run, then? Were not that a botchy core?

AJAX Dog!

Thersites! Then (there) would come some matter from him. I see none now.

AJAX Thou bitchwolf’s son, canst thou not hear? Feel, then. \(\text{Strikes him.}\)

Thersites The plague of Greece upon thee, thou mongrel beef-witted lord!

AJAX Speak, then, thou unsalted leaven, speak. I will beat thee into handsomeness.

Thersites I shall sooner rail thee into wit and holiness, but I think thy horse will sooner con an oration than thou learn \(\langle a \rangle\) prayer without book. Thou canst strike, canst thou? A red murrain o’ thy jade’s tricks.

AJAX Toadstool, learn me the proclamation.

Thersites Dost thou think I have no sense, thou strikest me thus?

AJAX The proclamation!

Thersites Thou art proclaimed \(\langle a \rangle\) fool, I think.
AJAX    Do not, porpentine, do not. My fingers itch.  25
THERSITES    I would thou didst itch from head to foot, and I had the scratching of thee; I would make thee the loathsomest scab in Greece. [When thou art forth in the incursions, thou strikest as slow as another.]  30
AJAX    I say, the proclamation!
THERSITES    Thou grumblest and railest every hour on Achilles, and thou art as full of envy at his greatness as Cerberus is at Proserpina’s beauty, ay, that thou bark’st at him.  35
AJAX    Mistress Thersites!
THERSITES    Thou shouldst strike him—
AJAX    Cobloaf!
THERSITES    He would pound thee into shivers with his fist as a sailor breaks a biscuit.  40
AJAX    You whomson cur!
THERSITES    Do, do.
AJAX    Thou stool for a witch!
THERSITES    Ay, do, do, thou sodden-witted lord. Thou hast no more brain than I have in mine elbows; an asinego may tutor thee, (thou) scurvy-valiant ass.
             Thou art here but to thrash Trojans, and thou art bought and sold among those of any wit, like a barbarian slave. If thou use to beat me, I will begin at thy heel and tell what thou art by inches, thou thing of no bowels, thou.  45
AJAX    You dog!
THERSITES    You scurvy lord!
AJAX    You cur!
THERSITES    Mars his idiot! Do, rudeness, do, camel, do, do.  50

          [Enter Achilles and Patroclus.]  55

ACHILLES    Why, how now, Ajax? Wherefore do you thus?—How now, Thersites? What’s the matter, man?
THERSITES You see him there, do you?

ACHILLES Ay, what’s the matter?

THERSITES Nay, look upon him.

ACHILLES So I do. What’s the matter?

THERSITES Nay, but regard him well.

ACHILLES Well, why, so I do.

THERSITES But yet you look not well upon him, for whomever you take him to be, he is Ajax.

ACHILLES I know that, fool.

THERSITES Ay, but that fool knows not himself.

AJAX Therefore I beat thee.

THERSITES Lo, lo, lo, lo, what modicums of wit he utters! His evasions have ears thus long. I have bobbed his brain more than he has beat my bones.

(I) will buy nine sparrows for a penny, and his pia mater is not worth the ninth part of a sparrow.

This lord, Achilles—Ajax, who wears his wit in his belly, and his guts in his head—(I’ll) tell you what I say of him.

ACHILLES What?

THERSITES I say, this Ajax— Ajax menaces him.

ACHILLES Nay, good Ajax.

THERSITES Has not so much wit—

ACHILLES, to Ajax Nay, I must hold you.

THERSITES As will stop the eye of Helen’s needle, for whom he comes to fight.

ACHILLES Peace, fool!

THERSITES I would have peace and quietness, but the fool will not—he there, that he. Look you there.

AJAX O, thou damned cur, I shall—

ACHILLES Will you set your wit to a fool’s?

THERSITES No, I warrant you. The fool’s will shame it.

PATROCLUS Good words, Thersites.

ACHILLES, to Ajax What’s the quarrel?

AJAX I bade the vile owl go learn me the tenor of the proclamation, and he rails upon me.
THERSITES I serve thee not.
AJAX Well, go to, go to.
THERSITES I serve here voluntary.

ACHILLES Your last service was suff’rance; ’twas not voluntary. No man is beaten voluntary. Ajax was here the voluntary, and you as under an impress.

THERSITES E’en so. A great deal of your wit, too, lies in your sinews, or else there be liars. Hector shall have a great catch and knock (out) either of your brains; he were as good crack a fusty nut with no kernel.

ACHILLES What, with me too, Thersites?
THERSITES There’s Ulysses and old Nestor—whose wit was moldy ere your grandsires had nails (on their toes)—yoke you like draft-oxen and make you plow up the wars.

ACHILLES What? What?
THERSITES Yes, good sooth. To, Achilles! To, Ajax! To—AJAX I shall cut out your tongue.

THERSITES ’Tis no matter. I shall speak as much as thou afterwards.

PATROCLUS No more words, Thersites. Peace.
THERSITES I will hold my peace when Achilles’ brach bids me, shall I?

ACHILLES There’s for you, Patroclus.

THERSITES I will see you hanged like clodpolls ere I come any more to your tents. I will keep where there is wit stirring and leave the faction of fools.

He exits.

PATROCLUS A good riddance.

ACHILLES, to Ajax

Marry, this, sir, is proclaimed through all our host:

That Hector, by the (fifth) hour of the sun,
Will with a trumpet ’twixt our tents and Troy
Tomorrow morning call some knight to arms
That hath a stomach, and such a one that dare
Maintain—I know not what; ’tis trash. Farewell.
Ajax. Farewell. Who shall answer him?

Achilles

I know not. ’Tis put to lott’ry. Otherwise,

He knew his man. [Achilles and Patroclus exit.]

Ajax. O, meaning you? I will go learn more of it.

(He exits.)

Scene 2

Enter Priam, Hector, Troilus, Paris and Helenas.

Priam

After so many hours, lives, speeches spent,

Thus once again says Nestor from the Greeks:

“Deliver Helen, and all damage else—

As honor, loss of time, travel, expense,

Wounds, friends, and what else dear that is consumed

In hot digestion of this cormorant war—

Shall be struck off.”—Hector, what say you to ’t?

Hector

Though no man lesser fears the Greeks than I

As far as toucheth my particular,

Yet, dread Priam,

There is no lady of more softer bowels,

More spongy to suck in the sense of fear,

More ready to cry out “Who knows what follows?”

Than Hector is. The wound of peace is (surety, Surety) secure; but modest doubt is called

The beacon of the wise, the tent that searches

To th’ bottom of the worst. Let Helen go.

Since the first sword was drawn about this question,

Every tithe soul, ’mongst many thousand dismes,

Hath been as dear as Helen; I mean, of ours.

If we have lost so many tenths of ours

To guard a thing not ours—nor worth to us,

Had it our name, the value of one ten—
TROILUS

What merit’s in that reason which denies
The yielding of her up?

Fie, fie, my brother,

HELENUS

Weigh you the worth and honor of a king
So great as our dread father’s in a scale
Of common ounces? Will you with counters sum
The past-proportion of his infinite,
And buckle in a waist most fathomless
As fears and reasons? Fie, for godly shame!

No marvel though you bite so sharp at reasons,
You are so empty of them. Should not our father
Bear the great sway of his affairs with reason,
Because your speech hath none that tell him so?

You are for dreams and slumbers, brother priest.
You fur your gloves with reason. Here are your reasons:

You know an enemy intends you harm;
You know a sword employed is perilous,
And reason flies the object of all harm.

Who marvels, then, when Helenus beholds
A Grecian and his sword, if he do set
The very wings of reason to his heels
And fly like chidden Mercury from Jove
Or like a star disorbed? Nay, if we talk of reason,
Let’s shut our gates and sleep. Manhood and honor
Should have hare hearts, would they but fat their thoughts
With this crammed reason. Reason and respect
Make livers pale and lustihood deject.

Brother, she is not worth what she doth cost
The keeping.

TROILUS

What’s aught but as ’tis valued?
HECTOR

But value dwells not in particular will;
It holds his estimate and dignity
As well wherein 'tis precious of itself
As in the prizer. 'Tis mad idolatry
To make the service greater than the god;
And the will dotes that is attributive
To what infectiously itself affects Without some image of th’ affected merit.

TROILUS

I take today a wife, and my election
Is led on in the conduct of my will—
My will enkindled by mine eyes and ears,
Two traded pilots ’twixt the dangerous shores
Of will and judgment. How may I avoid,
Although my will distaste what it elected,
The wife I choose? There can be no evasion
To blench from this and to stand firm by honor.
We turn not back the silks upon the merchant
When we have soiled them, nor the remainder viands
We do not throw in unrespective sieve
Because we now are full. It was thought meet
Paris should do some vengeance on the Greeks.
Your breath with full consent bellied his sails;
The seas and winds, old wranglers, took a truce
And did him service. He touched the ports desired,
And for an old aunt whom the Greeks held captive,
He brought a Grecian queen, whose youth and freshness
Wrinkles Apollo’s and makes pale the morning.
Why keep we her? The Grecians keep our aunt.
Is she worth keeping? Why, she is a pearl
Whose price hath launched above a thousand ships
And turned crowned kings to merchants.
If you’ll avouch ’twas wisdom Paris went—
As you must needs, for you all cried “Go, go”—
If you’ll confess (he) brought home worthy prize—
As you must needs, for you all clapped your hands
And cried “Inestimable”—why do you now
The issue of your proper wisdoms rate
And do a deed that never Fortune did,
Beggar the estimation which you prized
Richer than sea and land? O, theft most base,
That we have stol’n what we do fear to keep!
But thieves unworthy of a thing so stol’n,
That in their country did them that disgrace
We fear to warrant in our native place.

CASSANDRA, within Cry, Trojans, cry!

PRIAM  What noise? What shriek is this?
TROILUS
’Tis our mad sister. I do know her voice.

CASSANDRA, within  Cry, Trojans!

HECTOR  It is Cassandra.

Enter Cassandra raving.

CASSANDRA
Cry, Trojans, cry! Lend me ten thousand eyes,
And I will fill them with prophetic tears.

HECTOR  Peace, sister, peace!

CASSANDRA
Virgins and boys, mid-age and wrinkled elders,
Soft infancy, that nothing canst but cry,
Add to my clamors. Let us pay betimes
A moiety of that mass of moan to come.

Cry, Trojans, cry! Practice your eyes with tears.
Troy must not be, nor goodly Ilium stand.
Our firebrand brother Paris burns us all.
Cry, Trojans, cry! A Helen and a woe!
Cry, cry! Troy burns, or else let Helen go.  She exits.
HECTOR

Now, youthful Troilus, do not these high strains
Of divination in our sister work
Some touches of remorse? Or is your blood
So madly hot that no discourse of reason
Nor fear of bad success in a bad cause
Can qualify the same?

TROILUS

Why, brother Hector,
We may not think the justness of each act
Such and no other than event doth form it,
Nor once deject the courage of our minds
Because Cassandra’s mad. Her brainsick raptures
Cannot distaste the goodness of a quarrel
Which hath our several honors all engaged
To make it gracious. For my private part,
I am no more touched than all Priam’s sons;
And Jove forbid there should be done amongst us
Such things as might offend the weakest spleen
To fight for and maintain!

PARIS

Else might the world convince of levity
As well my undertakings as your counsels.
But I attest the gods, your full consent
Gave wings to my propension and cut off
All fears attending on so dire a project.
For what, alas, can these my single arms?
What propugnation is in one man’s valor
To stand the push and enmity of those
This quarrel would excite? Yet, I protest,
Were I alone to pass the difficulties
And had as ample power as I have will,
Paris should ne’er retract what he hath done
Nor faint in the pursuit.

PRIAM

Paris, you speak
Like one besotted on your sweet delights.
You have the honey still, but these the gall.
So to be valiant is no praise at all.
PARIS

Sir, I propose not merely to myself
The pleasures such a beauty brings with it,
But I would have the soil of her fair rape
Wiped off in honorable keeping her.
What treason were it to the ransacked queen,
Disgrace to your great worths, and shame to me,
Now to deliver her possession up
On terms of base compulsion? Can it be
That so degenerate a strain as this Should once set footing in your generous bosoms?
There’s not the meanest spirit on our party
Without a heart to dare or sword to draw
When Helen is defended, nor none so noble
Whose life were ill bestowed or death unfamed
Where Helen is the subject. Then I say,
Well may we fight for her whom, we know well,
The world’s large spaces cannot parallel.

HECTOR

Paris and Troilus, you have both said well,
And on the cause and question now in hand
Have glozed—but superficially, not much
Unlike young men, whom Aristotle thought
Unfit to hear moral philosophy.
The reasons you allege do more conduce
To the hot passion of distempered blood
Than to make up a free determination
’Twixt right and wrong, for pleasure and revenge
Have ears more deaf than adders to the voice
Of any true decision. Nature craves
All dues be rendered to their owners. Now,
What nearer debt in all humanity
Than wife is to the husband? If this law
Of nature be corrupted through affection,
And that great minds, of partial indulgence
To their benumbèd wills, resist the same,
There is a law in each well-ordered nation
To curb those raging appetites that are Most disobedient and refractory.
If Helen, then, be wife to Sparta's king,
As it is known she is, these moral laws
Of nature and of nations speak aloud
To have her back returned. Thus to persist
In doing wrong extenuates not wrong,
But makes it much more heavy. Hector's opinion
Is this in way of truth; yet, ne'ertheless,
My sprightly brethren, I propend to you
In resolution to keep Helen still,
For 'tis a cause that hath no mean dependence
Upon our joint and several dignities.

TROILUS
Why, there you touched the life of our design!
Were it not glory that we more affected
Than the performance of our heaving spleens,
I would not wish a drop of Trojan blood
Spent more in her defense. But, worthy Hector,
She is a theme of honor and renown,
A spur to valiant and magnanimous deeds,
Whose present courage may beat down our foes,
And fame in time to come canonize us;
For I presume brave Hector would not lose
So rich advantage of a promised glory
As smiles upon the forehead of this action
For the wide world's revenue.

I am yours,
You valiant offspring of great Priamus.
I have a roasting challenge sent amongst
The dull and factious nobles of the Greeks
Will (strike) amazement to their drowsy spirits.
I was advertised their great general slept,
Whilst emulation in the army crept.
This, I presume, will wake him.

They exit.
Enter Thersites, alone.

Thersites. How now, Thersites? What, lost in the labyrinth of thy fury? Shall the elephant Ajax carry it thus? He beats me, and I rail at him. O, worthy satisfaction! Would it were otherwise, that I could beat him whilst he railed at me. 'Sfoot, I'll learn to conjure and raise devils but I'll see some issue of my spiteful execrations. Then there's Achilles, a rare enginer! If Troy be not taken till these two undermine it, the walls will stand till they fall of themselves. O thou great thunder-darter of Olympus, forget that thou art Jove, the king of gods; and, Mercury, lose all the serpentine craft of thy caduceus, if you take not that little, little, less than little wit from them that they have, which short-armed ignorance itself knows is so abundant scarce it will not in circumvention deliver a fly from a spider without drawing their massy irons and cutting the web. After this, the vengeance on the whole camp! Or rather, the Neapolitan bone-ache! For that, methinks, is the curse depending on those that war for a placket. I have said my prayers, and devil Envy say “Amen.”—What ho, my lord Achilles!

Thersites. If I could 'a remembered a gilt counterfeit, thou couldst not have slipped out of my contemplation. But it is no matter. Thyself upon thyself! The common curse of mankind, folly and ignorance, be thine in great revenue! Heaven bless thee from a tutor, and discipline come not near thee! Let thy blood be thy direction till thy death; then if she that lays thee out says thou art a fair corse, I'll be sworn and sworn upon ’t she never shrouded any but lazars. Amen.

(Enter Patroclus.)

Where’s Achilles?

PATROCLUS  What, art thou devout? Wast thou in prayer?

THERSITES  Ay. The heavens hear me!

[PATROCLUS  Amen.]

ACHILLES, [within]  Who’s there?

PATROCLUS  Thersites, my lord.

ACHILLES, [within]  Where? Where? O, where?

Enter Achilles.

[To Thersites.] Art thou come? Why, my cheese, my digestion, why hast thou not served thyself in to my table so many meals? Come, what’s Agamemnon?

THERSITES  Thy commander, Achilles.—Then, tell me,
Patroclus, what’s Achilles?

PATROCLUS  Thy lord, Thersites. Then, tell me, I pray thee, what’s Thersites?

THERSITES  Thy knower, Patroclus. Then, tell me, Patroclus, what art thou?

PATROCLUS  Thou must tell that knowest.

ACHILLES  O tell, tell.

THERSITES  I’ll decline the whole question. Agamemnon commands Achilles, Achilles is my lord, I am Patroclus’ knower, and Patroclus is a fool.

(Enter Patroclus. You rascal!

THERSITES  Peace, fool. I have not done.

ACHILLES, [to Patroclus]  He is a privileged man.—Proceed,
Thersites.

THERSITES  Agamemnon is a fool, Achilles is a fool, Thersites is a fool, and, as aforesaid, Patroclus is a fool.)

ACHILLES  Derive this. Come.
THERSITES  Agamemnon is a fool to offer to command Achilles, Achilles is a fool to be commanded (of Agamemnon,) Thersites is a fool to serve such a fool, and this Patroclus is a fool positive.

PATROCLUS  Why am I a fool?  70

THERSITES  Make that demand of the (creator.) It suffices me thou art.

Enter [at a distance] Agamemnon, Ulysses, Nestor, Diomedes, Ajax, and Calchas.

Look you, who comes here?

ACHILLES  Patroclus, I’ll speak with nobody.—Come in with me, Thersites.  (He exits.)  75

THERSITES  Here is such patchery, such juggling, and such knavery. All the argument is a whore and a cuckold, a good quarrel to draw emulous factions and bleed to death upon. (Now the dry serpigo on the subject, and war and lechery confound all!)

(He exits.)  80

AGAMEMNON, [to Patroclus]  Where is Achilles?

PATROCLUS  Within his tent, but ill-disposed, my lord.

AGAMEMNON  Let it be known to him that we are here.
He [shent] our messengers, and we lay by
Our (appertainments,) visiting of him.  85
Let him be told so, lest perchance he think
We dare not move the question of our place
Or know not what we are.

PATROCLUS  I shall say so to him.  (He exits.)

ULYSSES  We saw him at the opening of his tent.

AJAX  Yes, lion-sick, sick of proud heart. You may call it melancholy if you will favor the man, but, by my head, 'tis pride. But, why, why? Let him show us a cause.—(A word, my lord.)

\[He and Agamemnon walk aside.\]

NESTOR What moves Ajax thus to bay at him?

ULYSSES Achilles hath inveigled his fool from him.

NESTOR Who, Thersites?

ULYSSES He.

NESTOR Then will Ajax lack matter, if he have lost his argument.

ULYSSES No. You see, he is his argument that has his argument: Achilles.

NESTOR All the better. Their fraction is more our wish than their faction. But it was a strong composure a fool could disunite.

ULYSSES The amity that wisdom knits not, folly may easily untie.

\(<Enter Patroclus.>\)

Here comes Patroclus.

NESTOR No Achilles with him.

ULYSSES The elephant hath joints, but none for courtesy; his legs are legs for necessity, not for flexure.

PATROCLUS (to Agamemnon)

Achilles bids me say he is much sorry
If anything more than your sport and pleasure
Did move your greatness and this noble state
To call upon him. He hopes it is no other
But for your health and your digestion sake,
An after-dinner's breath.

AGAMEMNON Hear you, Patroclus:
We are too well acquainted with these answers,
But his evasion, winged thus swift with scorn,
Cannot outfly our apprehensions.
Much attribute he hath, and much the reason
Why we ascribe it to him. Yet all his virtues,
Not virtuously on his own part beheld,
Do in our eyes begin to lose their gloss,
Yea, (and) like fair fruit in an unwholesome dish,
Are like to rot untasted. Go and tell him
We come to speak with him; and you shall not sin
If you do say we think him overproud
And underhonest, in self-assumption greater Than in the note of judgment; and worthier than himself
Here tend the savage strangeness he puts on,
Disguise the holy strength of their command,
And underwrite in an observing kind
His humorous predominance—yea, watch
His course and time, his ebbs and flows, (as) if
The passage and whole (carriage of this action)
Rode on his tide. Go tell him this, and add
That, if he overhold his price so much,
We'll none of him. But let him, like an engine
Not portable, lie under this report:
"Bring action hither; this cannot go to war."
A stirring dwarf we do allowance give Before a sleeping giant. Tell him so.

PATROCLUS
I shall, and bring his answer presently.

AGAMEMNON
In second voice we'll not be satisfied;
We come to speak with him.—Ulysses, (enter you.)
(Ulysses exits, [with Patroclus.])

AJAX What is he more than another?
AGAMEMNON No more than what he thinks he is.
AJAX Is he so much? Do you not think he thinks himself a better man than I am?
AGAMEMNON No question.
AJAX Will you subscribe his thought and say he is?
AGAMEMNON No, noble Ajax. You are as strong, as valiant, as wise, no less noble, much more gentle, and altogether more tractable.
AJAX  Why should a man be proud? How doth pride grow? I know not what pride is.

AGAMEMNON  Your mind is the clearer, Ajax, and your virtues the fairer. He that is proud eats up himself. Pride is his own glass, his own trumpet, his own chronicle; and whatever praises itself but in the deed devours the deed in the praise.

AJAX  I do hate a proud man as I hate the engendering of toads.

NESTOR, aside
And yet he loves himself. Is ’t not strange?

Enter Ulysses.

ULYSSES  Achilles will not to the field tomorrow.

AGAMEMNON  What’s his excuse?

ULYSSES  He doth rely on none,
But carries on the stream of his dispose,
Without observance or respect of any,
In will peculiar and in self-admission.

AGAMEMNON  Why, will he not, upon our fair request,
Untent his person and share th’ air with us?

ULYSSES  Things small as nothing, for request’s sake only,
He makes important. Possessed he is with greatness
And speaks not to himself but with a pride
That quarrels at self-breath. Imagined worth
Holds in his blood such swoll’n and hot discourse
That ’twixt his mental and his active parts
Kingdomed Achilles in commotion rages
And batters down himself. What should I say?
He is so plaguy proud that the death-tokens of it
Cry “No recovery.”

AGAMEMNON  Let Ajax go to him.—
Dear lord, go you and greet him in his tent.
’Tis said he holds you well and will be led
At your request a little from himself.

ULYSSES

O Agamemnon, let it not be so!
We’ll consecrate the steps that Ajax makes
When they go from Achilles. Shall the proud lord
That bastes his arrogance with his own seam
And never suffers matter of the world
Enter his thoughts, save such as doth revolve
And ruminate himself—shall he be worshipped
Of that we hold an idol more than he?
No. This thrice-worthy and right valiant lord
Shall not so stale his palm, nobly acquired,
Nor, by my will, assubjugate his merit,
As amply (titled) as Achilles is,

By going to Achilles.

That were to enlard his fat-already pride
And add more coals to Cancer when he burns
With entertaining great Hyperion.
This lord go to him? Jupiter forbid
And say in thunder “Achilles, go to him.”

NESTOR, [aside to Diomedes]

O, this is well; he rubs the vein of him.

DIOMEDES, [aside to Nestor]

And how his silence drinks up (this) applause!

AJAX

If I go to him, with my armèd fist
I’ll (pash) him o’er the face.

AGAMEMNON O, no, you shall not go.

AJAX

An he be proud with me, I’ll feeze his pride.

Let me go to him.

ULYSSES

Not for the worth that hangs upon our quarrel.

AJAX A paltry, insolent fellow.
NESTOR, \textit{aside} How he describes himself!

AJAX Can he not be sociable?

ULYSSES, \textit{aside} The raven chides blackness.

AJAX I’ll \textit{let} his humorous blood.

AGAMEMNON, \textit{aside} He will be the physician that should be the patient.

AJAX An all men were of my mind—

ULYSSES, \textit{aside} Wit would be out of fashion.

AJAX —he should not bear it so; he should eat swords first. Shall pride carry it?

NESTOR, \textit{aside} An ’twould, you’d carry half.

\textit{ULYSSES,} \textit{aside} He would have ten shares.

AJAX I will knead him; I’ll make him supple.

\textit{NESTOR, aside} He’s not yet through warm. Force him with \langle praises.\rangle Pour in, pour \langle in;\rangle his ambition is dry.

ULYSSES, \textit{to Agamemnon} My lord, you feed too much on this dislike.

NESTOR, \textit{to Agamemnon} Our noble general, do not do so.

DIOMEDES, \textit{to Agamemnon} You must prepare to fight without Achilles.

ULYSSES Why, ’tis this naming of him does him harm.

Here is a man—but ’tis before his face; I will be silent.

NESTOR Wherefore should you so?

He is not emulous, as Achilles is.

ULYSSES Know the whole world, he is as valiant—

AJAX A whoreson dog, that shall palter with us thus!

Would he were a Trojan!

NESTOR What a vice were it in Ajax now—

ULYSSES If he were proud—

DIOMEDES Or covetous of praise—

ULYSSES Ay, or surly borne—

DIOMEDES Or strange, or self-affected—
ULYSSES, [to Ajax]

Thank the heavens, lord, thou art of sweet composure.

Praise him that gat thee, she that gave thee suck;
Famed be thy tutor, and thy parts of nature
Thrice famed beyond, (beyond) thy erudition;
But he that disciplined thine arms to fight,
Let Mars divide eternity in twain
And give him half; and for thy vigor,
Bull-bearing Milo his addition yield
To sinewy Ajax. I will not praise thy wisdom,
Which like a (bourn,) a pale, a shore confines
(Thy) spacious and dilated parts. Here’s Nestor, Instructed by the antiquary times;
He must, he is, he cannot but be wise.—
But pardon, father Nestor, were your days
As green as Ajax’ and your brain so tempered,
You should not have the eminence of him,
But be as Ajax.

AJAX
Shall I call you father?

NESTOR
Ay, my good son.

DIOMEDES
Be ruled by him, Lord Ajax.

ULYSSES
There is no tarrying here; the hart Achilles
Keeps thicket. Please it our great general
To call together all his state of war.
Fresh kings are come to Troy. Tomorrow
We must with all our main of power stand fast.
And here’s a lord—come knights from east to west
And (cull) their flower, Ajax shall cope the best.

AGAMEMNON
Go we to council. Let Achilles sleep.
Light boats sail swift, though greater hulks draw deep.

They exit.
PANDARUS Friend, you, pray you, a word. Do you not follow the young Lord Paris?

MAN Ay, sir, when he goes before me.

PANDARUS You depend upon him, I mean.

MAN Sir, I do depend upon the Lord.

PANDARUS You depend upon a notable gentleman. I must needs praise him.

MAN The Lord be praised!

PANDARUS You know me, do you not?

MAN Faith, sir, superficially.

PANDARUS Friend, know me better. I am the Lord Pandarus.

MAN I hope I shall know your Honor better.

PANDARUS I do desire it.

MAN You are in the state of grace?

PANDARUS Grace? Not so, friend. “Honor” and “Lordship” are my titles. What music is this?

MAN I do but partly know, sir. It is music in parts.

PANDARUS Know you the musicians?

MAN Wholly, sir.

PANDARUS Who play they to?

MAN To the hearers, sir.

PANDARUS At whose pleasure, friend?
MAN At mine, sir, and theirs that love music.

PANDARUS Command, I mean, (friend.)

MAN Who shall I command, sir?

PANDARUS Friend, we understand not one another. I am too courtly and thou (art) too cunning. At whose request do these men play?

MAN That’s to ’t indeed, sir. Marry, sir, at the request of Paris my lord, who is there in person; with him the mortal Venus, the heart blood of beauty, love’s visible soul.

PANDARUS Who, my cousin Cressida?

MAN No, sir, Helen. Could not you find out that by her attributes?

PANDARUS It should seem, fellow, (that) thou hast not seen the Lady Cressid. I come to speak with Paris from the Prince Troilus. I will make a complimental assault upon him, for my business seethes.

MAN Sodden business! There’s a stewed phrase indeed.

Enter Paris and Helen (with Attendants.)

PANDARUS Fair be to you, my lord, and to all this fair company! Fair desires in all fair measure fairly guide them!—Especially to you, fair queen, fair thoughts be your fair pillow!

HELEN Dear lord, you are full of fair words.

PANDARUS You speak your fair pleasure, sweet queen.—Fair prince, here is good broken music.

PARIS You have broke it, cousin, and, by my life, you shall make it whole again; you shall piece it out with a piece of your performance.

HELEN He is full of harmony.

PANDARUS Truly, lady, no.

HELEN O, sir—

PANDARUS Rude, in sooth; in good sooth, very rude.

PARIS Well said, my lord; well, you say so in fits.
PANDARUS I have business to my lord, dear queen.—
   My lord, will you vouchsafe me a word?
HELEN Nay, this shall not hedge us out. We’ll hear you sing, certainly.
PANDARUS Well, sweet queen, you are pleasant with me. — But, marry, thus, my lord: my dear lord and most esteemed friend, your brother Troilus—
HELEN My Lord Pandarus, honey-sweet lord—
PANDARUS Go to, sweet queen, go to—commends himself most affectionately to you—
HELEN You shall not bob us out of our melody. If you do, our melancholy upon your head!
PANDARUS Sweet queen, sweet queen, that’s a sweet queen, i’ faith—
HELEN And to make a sweet lady sad is a sour offence.
PANDARUS Nay, that shall not serve your turn, that shall it not, in truth, la. Nay, I care not for such words, no, no.—And, my lord, he desires you that if the King call for him at supper, you will make his excuse.
HELEN My Lord Pandarus—PANDARUS What says my sweet queen, my very, very sweet queen?
PARIS What exploit’s in hand? Where sups he tonight?
HELEN Nay, but, my lord—
PANDARUS What says my sweet queen? My cousin will fall out with you.
HELEN, "to Paris" You must not know where he sups.
PARIS I’ll lay my life, with my disposer Cressida.
PANDARUS No, no, no such matter; you are wide.
   Come, your disposer is sick.
PARIS Well, I’ll make ’s excuse.
PANDARUS Ay, good my lord. Why should you say Cressida?
   No, your (poor) disposer’s sick.
PARIS I spy.
PANDARUS  You spy? What do you spy?—Come, give me an instrument.  [An Attendant gives him an instrument.]
   Now, sweet queen.

HELEN  Why, this is kindly done.

PANDARUS  My niece is horribly in love with a thing you have, sweet queen.

HELEN  She shall have it, my lord, if it be not my Lord
   Paris.

PANDARUS  He? No, she’ll none of him. They two are twain.

HELEN  Falling in after falling out may make them three.

PANDARUS  Come, come, I’ll hear no more of this. I’ll sing you a song now.

HELEN  Ay, ay, prithee. Now, by my troth, sweet lord thou hast a fine forehead.

PANDARUS  Ay, you may, you may.

HELEN  Let thy song be love. “This love will undo us all.”
   O Cupid, Cupid, Cupid!

PANDARUS  Love? Ay, that it shall, i’ faith.

PARIS  Ay, good now, “Love, love, nothing but love.”

PANDARUS  [In good troth, it begins so.]
   Love, love, nothing but love, still love, still more!
   For, O, love’s bow
   Shoots buck and doe.
   The (shaft confounds)
   Not that it wounds
   But tickles still the sore.

   These lovers cry “O ho!” they die,
   Yet that which seems the wound to kill Doth turn “O ho!” to “Ha ha he!”
   So dying love lives still.
   “O ho!” awhile, but “Ha ha ha!”
   “O ho!” groans out for “ha ha ha!”—Hey ho!
HELEN  In love, i’ faith, to the very tip of the nose.
PARIS  He eats nothing but doves, love, and that breeds hot blood, and hot blood begets hot thoughts, and hot thoughts beget hot deeds, and hot deeds is love.
PANDARUS  Is this the generation of love? Hot blood, hot thoughts, and hot deeds? Why, they are vipers. Is love a generation of vipers? Sweet lord, who’s afield today?
PARIS  Hector, Deiphobus, Helenus, Antenor, and all the gallantry of Troy. I would fain have armed today, but my Nell would not have it so. How chance my brother Troilus went not?
HELEN  He hangs the lip at something.—You know all, Lord Pandarus.
PANDARUS  Not I, honey sweet queen. I long to hear how they sped today.—You’ll remember your brother’s excuse?
PARIS  To a hair.
PANDARUS  Farewell, sweet queen.
HELEN  Commend me to your niece.
PANDARUS  I will, sweet queen.

They exit.

PARIS  Sound a retreat.

HELEN  ’Twill make us proud to be his servant, Paris.
PARIS  Yea, what he shall receive of us in duty
HELEN  Gives us more palm in beauty than we have,
PARIS  Yea, overshines ourself.
PARIS  Sweet, above thought I love (thee.)

They exit.
PANDARUS How now? Where’s thy master? At my cousin Cressida’s?

MAN No, sir, (he) stays for you to conduct him thither.

〈Enter Troilus.〉

PANDARUS O, here he comes.—How now, how now?

TROILUS, to his Man Sirrah, walk off. Man exits. 5

PANDARUS Have you seen my cousin?

TROILUS No, Pandarus. I stalk about her door
Like a strange soul upon the Stygian banks
Staying for waftage. O, be thou my Charon,
And give me swift transportance to (those) fields
Where I may wallow in the lily beds
Proposed for the deserver! O, gentle Pandar,
From Cupid’s shoulder pluck his painted wings
And fly with me to Cressid!

PANDARUS Walk here i’ th’ orchard. I’ll bring her straight. 15

〈Pandarus exits.〉

TROILUS I am giddy; expectation whirls me round.
Th’ imaginary relish is so sweet
That it enchants my sense. What will it be
When that the wat’ry taste indeed
Love’s thrice-repurèd nectar? Death, I fear me,
Swooning destruction, or some joy too fine,
Too subtle-potent, tuned too sharp in sweetness
For the capacity of my ruder powers.
I fear it much; and I do fear besides
That I shall lose distinction in my joys,
As doth a battle when they charge on heaps
The enemy flying.
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 3, SC. 2

〈Enter Pandarus.〉

PANDARUS    She’s making her ready; she’ll come straight.
            You must be witty now. She does so blush and fetches her wind so short as if she were fray’d with a spirit. I’ll fetch her. It is the prettiest villain. She fetches her breath as short as a new-ta’en sparrow.
            〈Pandarus exits.〉

TROILUS

Even such a passion doth embrace my bosom.
My heart beats thicker than a feverous pulse,
And all my powers do their bestowing lose,
Like vassalage at (unawares) encoun’t ring
The eye of majesty.

Enter Pandarus, and Cressida 〈veiled.〉

PANDARUS, 〈to Cressida〉    Come, come, what need you blush? Shame’s a baby.—Here she is now. Swear the oaths now to her that you have sworn to me.
            〈Cressida offers to leave.〉 What, are you gone again?
You must be watched ere you be made tame, must you? Come your ways; come your ways. An you draw backward, we’ll put you i’ th’ thills.—Why do you not speak to her?—Come, draw this curtain and let’s see your picture. 〈He draws back her veil.〉
Alas the day, how loath you are to offend daylight!
An ’twere dark, you’d close sooner.—So, so, rub on, and kiss the mistress. 〈They kiss.〉 How now? A kiss in fee-farm? Build there, carpenter; the air is sweet. Nay, you shall fight your hearts out ere I part you. The falcon as the tercel, for all the ducks i’ th’ river. Go to, go to.

TROILUS    You have bereft me of all words, lady.

PANDARUS    Words pay no debts; give her deeds. But she’ll bereave you o’ th’ deeds too, if she call your activity in question. 〈They kiss.〉 What, billing again? Here’s “In witness whereof the parties interchangeably—.” Come in, come in. I’ll go get a fire.

[Pandarus exits.]

CRESSIDA Will you walk in, my lord?

TROILUS O Cressid, how often have I wished me thus!

CRESSIDA “Wished,” my lord? The gods grant—O, my lord!

TROILUS What should they grant? What makes this pretty abruption? What too-curious dreg espies my sweet lady in the fountain of our love?

CRESSIDA More dregs than water, if my fears have eyes.

TROILUS Fears make devils of cherubins; they never see truly.

CRESSIDA Blind fear, that seeing reason leads, finds safer footing than blind reason, stumbling without fear. To fear the worst oft cures the worse.

TROILUS O, let my lady apprehend no fear. In all Cupid’s pageant there is presented no monster.

CRESSIDA Nor nothing monstrous neither?

TROILUS Nothing but our undertakings, when we vow to weep seas, live in fire, eat rocks, tame tigers, thinking it harder for our mistress to devise imposition enough than for us to undergo any difficulty imposed. This is the monstruousity in love, lady, that the will is infinite and the execution confined, that the desire is boundless and the act a slave to limit.

CRESSIDA They say all lovers swear more performance than they are able and yet reserve an ability that they never perform, vowing more than the perfection of ten and discharging less than the tenth part of one. They that have the voice of lions and the act of hares, are they not monsters?

TROILUS Are there such? Such are not we. Praise us as we are tasted, allow us as we prove; our head shall go bare till merit (crown it. No perfection) in reversion shall have a praise in present. We will not name desert before his birth, and, being born, his addition shall be humble. Few words to fair faith.
Troilus shall be such to Cressid as what envy can say worst shall be a mock for his truth, and what truth can speak truest not truer than Troilus.

CRESSIDA Will you walk in, my lord?

〈Enter Pandarus.〉

PANDARUS What, blushing still? Have you not done talking yet?
CRESSIDA Well, uncle, what folly I commit I dedicate to you.
PANDARUS I thank you for that. If my lord get a boy of you, you’ll give him me. Be true to my lord. If he flinch, chide me for it.
TROILUS, 〈to Cressida〉 You know now your hostages:
your uncle’s word and my firm faith.
PANDARUS Nay, I’ll give my word for her too. Our kindred, though they be long ere they be wooed, they are constant being won. They are burrs, I can tell you; they’ll stick where they are thrown.

CRESSIDA

Boldness comes to me now and brings me heart.
Prince Troilus, I have loved you night and day
For many weary months.

TROILUS

Why was my Cressid then so hard to win?

CRESSIDA

Hard to seem won; but I was won, my lord,
With the first glance that ever—pardon me;
If I confess much, you will play the tyrant.
I love you now, but till now not so much
But I might master it. In faith, I lie;
My thoughts were like unbridled children grown
Too headstrong for their mother. See, we fools!
Why have I blabbed? Who shall be true to us
When we are so unsecret to ourselves?
But though I loved you well, I woor'd you not;
And yet, good faith, I wished myself a man;
Or that we women had men's privilege
Of speaking first. Sweet, bid me hold my tongue,
For in this rapture I shall surely speak
The thing I shall repent. See, see, your silence,
My very soul of counsel! Stop my mouth.

TROILUS

And shall, albeit sweet music issues thence.

PANDARUS Pretty, i' faith!
CRESSIDA, to Troilus

My lord, I do beseech you pardon me.
'Twas not my purpose thus to beg a kiss.
I am ashamed. O heavens, what have I done!
For this time will I take my leave, my lord.

TROILUS Your leave, sweet Cressid?

PANDARUS Leave? An you take leave till tomorrow morning——

CRESSIDA Pray you, content you.
TROILUS What offends you, lady?
CRESSIDA Sir, mine own company.
TROILUS You cannot shun yourself.
CRESSIDA Let me go and try.

I have a kind of self resides with you,
But an unkind self that itself will leave
To be another's fool. I would be gone.
Where is my wit? I know not what I speak.

TROILUS

Well know they what they speak that speak so wisely.

CRESSIDA

Perchance, my lord, I show more craft than love
And fell so roundly to a large confession
To angle for your thoughts. But you are wise,
Or else you love not; for to be wise and love
Exceeds man’s might. That dwells with gods above.

TROILUS

O, that I thought it could be in a woman—
As, if it can, I will presume in you—
To feed for (aye) her lamp and flames of love,
To keep her constancy in plight and youth,
Outliving beauty’s outward, with a mind
That doth renew swifter than blood decays!
Or that persuasion could but thus convince me
That my integrity and truth to you
Might be affronted with the match and weight
Of such a winnowed purity in love;
How were I then uplifted! But, alas,
I am as true as truth’s simplicity
And simpler than the infancy of truth.

CRESSIDA

In that I’ll war with you.

TROILUS

O virtuous fight,
When right with right wars who shall be most right!
True swains in love shall in the world to come
Approve their truth by Troilus. When their rhymes,
Full of protest, of oath and big compare,
Wants similes, truth tired with iteration—
“As true as steel, as plantage to the moon,
As sun to day, as turtle to her mate,
As iron to adamant, as Earth to th’ center”—
(Yet,) after all comparisons of truth,
As truth’s authentic author to be cited,
“As true as Troilus” shall crown up the verse
And sanctify the numbers.

CRESSIDA

Prophet may you be!

If I be false or swerve a hair from truth,
When time is old (and) hath forgot itself,
When water drops have worn the stones of Troy
And blind oblivion swallowed cities up,
And mighty states characterless are grated
To dusty nothing, yet let memory,
From false to false, among false maids in love,
Upbraid my falsehood! When they’ve said “as false
As air, as water, wind or sandy earth,
As fox to lamb, or wolf to heifer’s calf,
Pard to the hind, or stepdame to her son,”
Yea, let them say, to stick the heart of falsehood,
“As false as Cressid.”

PANDARUS Go to, a bargain made. Seal it, seal it. I’ll be the witness. Here I hold your hand, here my cousin’s. If ever you prove false one to another, since I have taken such (pains) to bring you together, let all pitiful goers-between be called to the world’s end after my name: call them all panders. Let all constant men be Troiluses, all false women Cressids, and all brokers-between panders. Say “Amen.”

TROILUS Amen.

CRESSIDA Amen.

PANDARUS Amen. Whereupon I will show you a chamber with a bed, which bed, because it shall not speak of your pretty encounters, press it to death.
Away. [Troilus and Cressida] exit.

And Cupid grant all tongue-tied maidens here
Bed, chamber, pander to provide this gear.

He exits.

[Scene 3]

(Flourish.) Enter Ulysses, Diomedes, Nestor, Agamemnon, Calchas, (Menelaus,) [and Ajax.]

CALCHAS
Now, princes, for the service I have done (you,)
Th’ advantage of the time prompts me aloud
To call for recompense. Appear it to (your) mind
That, through the sight I bear in things to come,
I have abandoned Troy, left my possessions,
Incurred a traitor's name, exposed myself,
From certain and possessed conveniences,
To doubtful fortunes, sequest'ring from me all
That time, acquaintance, custom, and condition
Made tame and most familiar to my nature,
And here, to do you service, am become
As new into the world, strange, unacquainted.
I do beseech you, as in way of taste,
To give me now a little benefit
Out of those many regist'red in promise,
Which you say live to come in my behalf.

AGAMEMNON

What wouldst thou of us, Trojan, make demand?

CALCHAS

You have a Trojan prisoner called Antenor
Yesterday took. Troy holds him very dear.
Oft have you—often have you thanks therefor—
Desired my Cressid in right great exchange,
Whom Troy hath still denied; but this Antenor,
I know, is such a wrest in their affairs
That their negotiations all must slack,
Wanting his manage; and they will almost
Give us a prince of blood, a son of Priam,
In change of him. Let him be sent, great princes,
And he shall buy my daughter; and her presence
Shall quite strike off all service I have done
In most accepted pain.

AGAMEMNON

Let Diomedes bear him,
And bring us Cressid hither. Calchas shall have What he requests of us. Good Diomed,
Furnish you fairly for this interchange.
Withal, bring word if Hector will tomorrow
Be answered in his challenge. Ajax is ready.
DIOMEDES

This shall I undertake, and ’tis a burden
Which I am proud to bear.  He exits with Calchas.

Achilles and Patroclus stand in their tent.

ULYSSES

Achilles stands i’ th’ entrance of his tent.
Please it our General pass strangely by him
As if he were forgot, and, princes all,
Lay negligent and loose regard upon him.
I will come last. ’Tis like he’ll question me
Why such unpleasing eyes are bent, why turned on him.
If so, I have derision medicinable
To use between your strangeness and his pride,
Which his own will shall have desire to drink.
It may do good; pride hath no other glass
To show itself but pride, for supple knees
Feed arrogance and are the proud man’s fees.

AGAMEMNON

We’ll execute your purpose and put on
A form of strangeness as we pass along;
So do each lord, and either greet him not
Or else disdainfully, which shall shake him more Than if not looked on. I will lead the way.

‘They pass before Achilles and Patroclus. Ulysses remains in place, reading.’

ACHILLES

What, comes the General to speak with me?
You know my mind: I’ll fight no more ’gainst Troy.

AGAMEMNON, to Nestor

What says Achilles? Would he aught with us?

NESTOR, to Achilles

Would you, my lord, aught with the General?

ACHILLES  No.
NESTOR  Nothing, my lord.

AGAMEMNON  The better.  [Agamemnon and Nestor exit.]

ACHILLES, [to Menelaus]  Good day, good day.

MENELAUS  How do you? How do you?  [He exits.]  65

ACHILLES  What, does the cuckold scorn me?

AJAX  How now, Patroclus?

ACHILLES  Good morrow, Ajax.

AJAX  Ha?

ACHILLES  Good morrow.

AJAX  Ay, and good next day too.  [He exits.]

ACHILLES  What mean these fellows? Know they not Achilles?

PATROCLUS  They pass by strangely. They were used to bend,
          To send their smiles before them to Achilles,
          To come as humbly as they [use] to creep
          To holy altars.

ACHILLES  What, am I poor of late?
          ’Tis certain, greatness, once fall’n out with Fortune, Must fall out with men too. What the declined is
          He shall as soon read in the eyes of others
          As feel in his own fall, for men, like butterflies,
          Show not their mealy wings but to the summer,
          And not a man, for being simply man,
          Hath any honor, but honor for those honors
          That are without him—as place, riches, and favor
          Prizes of accident as oft as merit,
          Which, when they fall, as being slippery slanders,
          The love that leaned on them, as slippery too,
          Doth one pluck down another and together
          Die in the fall. But ’tis not so with me.
          Fortune and I are friends. I do enjoy,
          At ample point, all that I did possess,
          Save these men’s looks, who do, methinks, find out
          Something not worth in me such rich beholding
As they have often given. Here is Ulysses. I’ll interrupt his reading.—How now, Ulysses?

ULYSSES  Now, great Thetis’ son—

ACHILLES  What are you reading?

ULYSSES  A strange fellow here

Writes me that man, how dearly ever parted,
How much in having, or without or in,
Cannot make boast to have that which he hath,
Nor feels not what he owes, but by reflection;
As when his virtues, (shining) upon others,
Heat them, and they retort that heat again
To the first (giver.)

ACHILLES  This is not strange, Ulysses.
The beauty that is borne here in the face
The bearer knows not, but commends itself
[To others’ eyes; nor doth the eye itself,
That most pure spirit of sense, behold itself,]
Not going from itself, but eye to eye opposed
Salutes each other with each other’s form.
For speculation turns not to itself
Till it hath traveled and is [mirrored] there
Where it may see itself. This is not strange at all.

ULYSSES
I do not strain at the position—
It is familiar—but at the author’s drift,
Who in his circumstance expressly proves
That no man is the lord of anything—
Though in and of him there be much consisting—
Till he communicate his parts to others;
Nor doth he of himself know them for aught
Till he behold them formed in the applause
Where they’re extended; who, like an arch, reverb’rate
The voice again or, like a gate of steel
Fronting the sun, receives and renders back
His figure and his heat. I was much rapt in this
And apprehended here immediately
Th’ unknown Ajax. Heavens, what a man is there!
A very horse, that has he knows not what!
Nature, what things there are
Most (abject) in regard, and dear in use,
What things again most dear in the esteem
And poor in worth! Now shall we see tomorrow—
An act that very chance doth throw upon him—
Ajax renowned. O, heavens, what some men do
While some men leave to do!
How some men creep in skittish Fortune’s hall,
Whiles others play the idiots in her eyes!
How one man eats into another’s pride,
While pride is fasting in his wantonness!
To see these Grecian lords—why, even already
They clap the lubber Ajax on the shoulder
As if his foot were on brave Hector’s breast
And great Troy shrieking.

ACHILLES
I do believe it, for they passed by me
As misers do by beggars, neither gave to me
Good word nor look. What, are my deeds forgot?

ULYSSES
Time hath, my lord, a wallet at his back
Wherein he puts alms for oblivion,
A great-sized monster of ingratiations.
Those scraps are good deeds past, which are devoured
As fast as they are made, forgot as soon
As done. Perseverance, dear my lord,
Keeps honor bright. To have done is to hang Quite out of fashion like a rusty mail
In monumental mock’ry. Take the instant way,
For honor travels in a strait so narrow
Where one but goes abreast. Keep, then, the path,
For Emulation hath a thousand sons
That one by one pursue. If you give way
Or turn aside from the direct forthright,
Like to an entered tide they all rush by
And leave you (hindmost;)
Or, like a gallant horse fall’n in first rank,
Lie there for pavement to the abject rear,
O’errun and trampled on.) Then what they do in present,
Though less than yours in (past,) must o’ertop yours;
For Time is like a fashionable host
That slightly shakes his parting guest by th’ hand
And, with his arms outstretched as he would fly,
Grasps in the comer. Welcome ever smiles,
And Farewell goes out sighing. Let not virtue seek Remuneration for the thing it was,
For beauty, wit,
High birth, vigor of bone, desert in service,
Love, friendship, charity are subjects all
To envious and calumniating Time.
One touch of nature makes the whole world kin,
That all, with one consent, praise newborn gauds,
Though they are made and molded of things past,
And give to dust that is a little gilt
More laud than gilt o’erdusted.
The present eye praises the present object.
Then marvel not, thou great and complete man,
That all the Greeks begin to worship Ajax,
Since things in motion sooner catch the eye
(Than) what stirs not. The cry went once on thee,
And still it might, and yet it may again,
If thou wouldst not entomb thyself alive
And case thy reputation in thy tent,
Whose glorious deeds but in these fields of late
Made emulous missions ’mongst the gods themselves
And drave great Mars to faction.
Of this my privacy,
I have strong reasons.
But ’gainst your privacy
The reasons are more potent and heroical.
'Tis known, Achilles, that you are in love
With one of Priam’s daughters.

ACHILLES

Ha? Known?

ULYSSES  Is that a wonder?

The providence that’s in a watchful state
Knows almost every grain of Pluto’s gold,
Finds bottom in the uncomprehensive deep,
Keeps place with thought and almost, like the gods,
Do thoughts unveil in their dumb cradles.

There is a mystery—with whom relation
Durst never meddle—in the soul of state,
Which hath an operation more divine
Than breath or pen can give expressure to.

All the commerce that you have had with Troy
As perfectly is ours as yours, my lord;
And better would it fit Achilles much
To throw down Hector than Polyxena.

But it must grieve young Pyrrhus now at home
When Fame shall in our islands sound her trump,
And all the Greekish girls shall tripping sing “Great Hector’s sister did Achilles win,
But our great Ajax bravely beat down him.”

Farewell, my lord. I as your lover speak.
The fool slides o’er the ice that you should break.

He exits.

PATROCLUS

To this effect, Achilles, have I moved you.
A woman impudent and mannish grown
Is not more loathed than an effeminate man
In time of action. I stand condemned for this.
They think my little stomach to the war,
And your great love to me, restrains you thus.
Sweet, rouse yourself, and the weak wanton Cupid
Shall from your neck unloose his amorous fold
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 3. SC. 3

And, like (a) dewdrop from the lion’s mane,
Be shook to air.

ACHILLES

Shall Ajax fight with Hector?

PATROCLUS

Ay, and perhaps receive much honor by him.

ACHILLES

I see my reputation is at stake;
My fame is shrewdly gored.

PATROCLUS

O, then, beware!

Those wounds heal ill that men do give themselves.

Omission to do what is necessary
Seals a commission to a blank of danger,
And danger, like an ague, subtly taints
Even then when they sit idly in the sun.

ACHILLES

Go call Thersites hither, sweet Patroclus.

I’ll send the fool to Ajax and desire him
T’ invite the Trojan lords after the combat
To see us here unarmed. I have a woman’s longing,
An appetite that I am sick withal,
To see great Hector in his weeds of peace,
To talk with him, and to behold his visage,
Even to my full of view.

Enter Thersites.

A labor saved.

THERSITES

A wonder!

ACHILLES

What?

THERSITES

Ajax goes up and down the field, asking for himself.

ACHILLES

How so?

THERSITES

He must fight singly tomorrow with Hector and is so prophetically proud of an heroical cudgeling that he raves in saying nothing.

ACHILLES

How can that be?
THERSITES  Why, he stalks up and down like a peacock—a stride and a stand; ruminates like an hostess that hath no arithmetic but her brain to set down her reckoning; bites his lip with a politic regard, as who should say “There were wit in this head an ’twould out”—and so there is, but it lies as coldly in him as fire in a flint, which will not show without knocking. The man’s undone forever, for if Hector break not his neck i’ th’ combat, he’ll break ’t himself in vainglory. He knows not me. I said “Good morrow, Ajax,” and he replies “Thanks, Agamemnon.” What think you of this man that takes me for the General? He’s grown a very land-fish, languageless, a monster. A plague of opinion! A man may wear it on both sides, like a leather jerkin.

ACHILLES  Thou must be my ambassador (to him,) THERSITES  Who, I? Why, he’ll answer nobody. He professes not answering; speaking is for beggars; he wears his tongue in ’s arms. I will put on his presence.
Let Patroclus make (his) demands to me. You shall see the pageant of Ajax.

ACHILLES  To him, Patroclus. Tell him I humbly desire the valiant Ajax to invite the (most) valorous Hector to come unarmed to my tent, and to procure safe-conduct for his person of the magnanimous and most illustrious, six-or-seven-times-honored captain general of the (Grecian) army, Agamemnon, (et cetera.) Do this.

PATROCLUS, (to THERSITES, who is playing Ajax) Jove bless great Ajax.

THERSITES  Hum!

PATROCLUS  I come from the worthy Achilles—
THERSITES  Ha?
PATROCLUS Who most humbly desires you to invite Hector to his tent—
THERSITES Hum! 300
PATROCLUS And to procure safe-conduct from
   Agamemnon.
THERSITES Agamemnon?
PATROCLUS Ay, my lord.
THERSITES Ha! 305
PATROCLUS What say you to ’t?
THERSITES God b’ wi’ you, with all my heart.
PATROCLUS Your answer, sir.
THERSITES If tomorrow be a fair day, by eleven of the clock it will go one way or other. Howsoever, he shall pay for me ere he has me.
PATROCLUS Your answer, sir.
THERSITES Fare you well with all my heart.
   [He pretends to exit.]
ACHILLES Why, but he is not in this tune, is he?
THERSITES No, but (he’s) out of tune thus. What music will be in him when Hector has knocked out his brains I know not. But I am sure none, unless the fiddler Apollo get his sinews to make catlings on.
ACHILLES Come, thou shalt bear a letter to him straight. 320
THERSITES Let me bear another to his horse, for that’s the more capable creature.
ACHILLES My mind is troubled, like a fountain stirred,
   And I myself see not the bottom of it.
   [Achilles and Patroclus exit.]
THERSITES Would the fountain of your mind were clear again, that I might water an ass at it. I had rather be a tick in a sheep than such a valiant ignorance.
   [He exits.]

Scene 1
Enter at one door Aeneas [with a Torchbearer] at another Paris, Deiphobus, Antenor, Diomedes [and Grecians] with torches.

PARIS    See, ho! Who is that there?
DEIPHOBUS  It is the Lord Aeneas.
AENEAS    Is the Prince there in person?—
         Had I so good occasion to lie long
         As (you,) Prince Paris, nothing but heavenly business
         Should rob my bedmate of my company.
DIOMEDES  That’s my mind too.—Good morrow, Lord Aeneas.
PARIS
         A valiant Greek, Aeneas; take his hand.
         Witness the process of your speech, wherein
         You told how Diomed a whole week by days
         Did haunt you in the field.
AENEAS    Health to you, valiant sir,
         During all question of the gentle truce;
         But when I meet you armed, as black defiance
         As heart can think or courage execute.
DIOMEDES  The one and other Diomed embraces.
         Our bloods are now in calm, and, so long, health;
         (But) when contention and occasion meet,
By Jove, I'll play the hunter for thy life
With all my force, pursuit, and policy.

AENEAS

And thou shalt hunt a lion that will fly
With his face backward. In human gentleness,
Welcome to Troy. Now, by Anchises’ life,
Welcome indeed. By Venus’ hand I swear
No man alive can love in such a sort
The thing he means to kill more excellently.

DIOMEDES

We sympathize. Jove, let Aeneas live,
If to my sword his fate be not the glory,
A thousand complete courses of the sun!
But in mine emulous honor let him die
With every joint a wound and that tomorrow.

AENEAS  We know each other well.

DIOMEDES

We do, and long to know each other worse.

PARIS

This is the most despiteful gentle greeting,
The noblest hateful love, that e’er I heard of.

[Aside to Aeneas.] What business, lord, so early?

AENEAS

I was sent for to the King, but why I know not.

PARIS

His purpose meets you. ’Twas to bring this Greek
To Calchas’ house, and there to render him,
For the enfreed Antenor, the fair Cressid.
Let’s have your company, or, if you please,
Haste there before us. (Aside to Aeneas.) I constantly believe—

[Aside to Troilus] Or, rather, call my thought a certain knowledge—
My brother Troilus lodges there tonight.
Rouse him, and give him note of our approach,
With the whole quality (whereof,) I fear
We shall be much unwelcome.
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 4. SC. 1

AENEAS, aside to Paris

That I assure you.

Troilus had rather Troy were borne to Greece

Than Cressid borne from Troy.

PARIS, aside to Aeneas

There is no help.

The bitter disposition of the time

Will have it so.—On, lord, we’ll follow you.

AENEAS

Good morrow, all.

*<Aeneas exits with the Torchbearer.>*

PARIS

And tell me, noble Diomed, faith, tell me true,

Even in the soul of sound good-fellowship,

Who, in your thoughts, deserves fair Helen best,

Myself or Menelaus?

DIOMEDES

Both alike.

He merits well to have her that doth seek her,

Not making any scruple of her soilure,

With such a hell of pain and world of charge;

And you as well to keep her that defend her,

Not palating the taste of her dishonor,

With such a costly loss of wealth and friends.

He, like a puding cuckold, would drink up

The lees and dregs of a flat tamèd piece;

You, like a lecher, out of whorish loins

Are pleased to breed out your inheritors.

Both merits poised, each weighs nor less nor more;

But he as he, the heavier for a whore.

PARIS

You are too bitter to your countrywoman.

DIOMEDES

She’s bitter to her country. Hear me, Paris:

For every false drop in her bawdy veins

A Grecian’s life hath sunk; for every scruple

Of her contaminated carrion weight

A Trojan hath been slain. Since she could speak,

She hath not given so many good words breath

As for her Greeks and Trojans suffered death.
PARIS
Fair Diomed, you do as chapmen do,
Dispraise the thing that they desire to buy.
But we in silence hold this virtue well:
We’ll not commend that not intend to sell.
Here lies our way.

They exit.

Scene 2
Enter Troilus and Cressida.

TROILUS
Dear, trouble not yourself. The morn is cold.

CRESSIDA
Then, sweet my lord, I’ll call mine uncle down.
He shall unbolt the gates.

TROILUS
Trouble him not.

CRESSIDA
To bed, to bed! Sleep kill those pretty eyes
And give as soft attachment to thy senses
As infants’ empty of all thought!

TROILUS
Good morrow, then.

CRESSIDA
Are you aweary of me?

TROILUS
I prithee now, to bed.

O Cressida! But that the busy day,
Waked by the lark, hath roused the ribald crows,
And dreaming night will hide our joys no longer,
I would not from thee.

CRESSIDA
Night hath been too brief.

TROILUS
Beshrew the witch! With venomous wights she stays
As tediously as hell, but flies the grasps of love
With wings more momentary-swift than thought.
You will catch cold and curse me.
CRESSIDA
Prithée, tarry. You men will never tarry.
O foolish Cressid! I might have still held off,
And then you would have tarried. Hark, there’s one up.

PANDARUS, within What’s all the doors open here?

TROILUS It is your uncle.

CRESSIDA
A pestilence on him! Now will he be mocking.
I shall have such a life!

Enter Pandarus.

PANDARUS How now, how now? How go maidenheads?
Here, you maid! Where’s my Cousin Cressid?

CRESSIDA
Go hang yourself, you naughty mocking uncle.
You bring me to do—and then you flout me too.

PANDARUS To do what, to do what?—Let her say what.—What have I brought you to do?

CRESSIDA
Come, come, beshrew your heart! You’ll ne’er be good Nor suffer others.

PANDARUS Ha, ha! Alas, poor wretch! Ah, poor capocchia!
Has ’t not slept tonight? Would he not—a naughty man—let it sleep? A bugbear take him!

CRESSIDA, to Troilus
Did not I tell you? Would he were knocked i’ th’ head!
One knocks.

Who’s that at door?—Good uncle, go and see.—
My lord, come you again into my chamber.

You smile and mock me, as if I meant naughtily.

TROILUS Ha, ha!

CRESSIDA
Come, you are deceived. I think of no such thing.

Knock.

How earnestly they knock! Pray you, come in.

I would not for half Troy have you seen here.

Troilus and Cressida exit.
PANDARUS  Who’s there? What’s the matter? Will you beat down the door?

[Enter Aeneas.]

How now? What’s the matter?

AENEAS  Good morrow, lord, good morrow.

PANDARUS  Who’s there? My Lord Aeneas? By my troth, I knew you not. What news with you so early?

AENEAS  Is not Prince Troilus here?

PANDARUS  Here? What should he do here?

AENEAS  Come, he is here, my lord. Do not deny him.

PANDARUS  It doth import him much to speak with me.

Is he here, say you? It’s more than I know, I’ll be sworn. For my own part, I came in late.

What should he do here?

AENEAS  ‘Ho, nay, then! Come, come, you’ll do him wrong ere you are ware. You’ll be so true to him to be false to him. Do not you know of him, but yet go fetch him hither. Go.

TROILUS  How now? What’s the matter?

AENEAS  My lord, I scarce have leisure to salute you, My matter is so rash. There is at hand Paris your brother and Deiphobus, The Grecian Diomed, and our Antenor Delivered to us; and for him forthwith, Ere the first sacrifice, within this hour, We must give up to Diomedes’ hand The Lady Cressida.

TROILUS  Is it so concluded?

AENEAS  By Priam and the general state of Troy. They are at hand and ready to effect it.
TROILUS  How my achievements mock me! I will go meet them. And, my Lord Aeneas, We met by chance; you did not find me here.

AENEAS

Good, good, my lord; the secrets of <nature>
Have not more gift in taciturnity.

Troilus and Aeneas exit.

PANDARUS  Is ’t possible? No sooner got but lost? The devil take Antenor! The young prince will go mad. A plague upon Antenor! I would they had broke ’s neck!

Enter Cressida.

〈CRESSIDA〉

How now? What’s the matter? Who was here?

PANDARUS  Ah, ah!

CRESSIDA

Why sigh you so profoundly? Where’s my lord? Gone? Tell me, sweet uncle, what’s the matter?

PANDARUS  Would I were as deep under the earth as I am above!

CRESSIDA  O the gods! What’s the matter?

PANDARUS  Pray thee, get thee in. Would thou hadst ne’er been born! I knew thou wouldst be his death. O, poor gentleman! A plague upon Antenor!

CRESSIDA  Good uncle, I beseech you, on my knees (I beseech you,) what’s the matter?

PANDARUS  Thou must be gone, wench; thou must be gone. Thou art changed for Antenor. Thou must to thy father and be gone from Troilus. ’Twill be his death; ’twill be his bane. He cannot bear it.

CRESSIDA  O you immortal gods! I will not go.

PANDARUS  Thou must.

CRESSIDA  I will not, uncle. I have forgot my father.
I know no touch of consanguinity,
No kin, no love, no blood, no soul so near me
As the sweet Troilus. O you gods divine,
Make Cressid’s name the very crown of falsehood
If ever she leave Troilus! Time, force, and death
Do to this body what extremes you can,
But the strong base and building of my love
Is as the very center of the Earth,
Drawing all things to it. I’ll go in and weep—

PANDARUS    Do, do.

CRESSIDA
Tear my bright hair, and scratch my praisèd cheeks,
Crack my clear voice with sohs, and break my heart
With sounding “Troilus.” I will not go from Troy.

(They exit.)

Scene 3
Enter Paris, Troilus, Aeneas, Deiphobus, Antenor,
(and) Diomedes.

PARIS
It is great morning, and the hour prefixed
For her delivery to this valiant Greek Comes fast upon. Good my brother Troilus,
Tell you the lady what she is to do
And haste her to the purpose.

TROILUS    Walk into her house.
 I’ll bring her to the Grecian presently;
And to his hand when I deliver her,
Think it an altar and thy brother Troilus
A priest there off’ring to it his own heart.

(He exits.)

PARIS    I know what ’tis to love,
And would, as I shall pity, I could help.—
Please you walk in, my lords?

They exit.
Enter Pandarus and Cressida, weeping.

PANDARUS  Be moderate, be moderate.

CRESSIDA

Why tell you me of moderation?
The grief is fine, full, perfect that I taste,
And violenteth in a sense as strong
As that which causeth it. How can I moderate it?
If I could temporize with my affection
Or brew it to a weak and colder palate,
The like allayment could I give my grief.
My love admits no qualifying dross;
No more my grief in such a precious loss.

Enter Troilus.

PANDARUS  Here, here, here he comes. 'Ah, sweet ducks!

CRESSIDA, embracing Troilus

O Troilus, Troilus!

PANDARUS  What a pair of spectacles is here! Let me embrace too. "O heart," as the goodly saying is,

O heart, heavy heart,
Why sigh'st thou without breaking?

where he answers again,

Because thou canst not ease thy smart
By friendship nor by speaking.

There was never a truer rhyme. Let us cast away nothing, for we may live to have need of such a verse. We see it, we see it. How now, lambs?

TROILUS

Cressid, I love thee in so strained a purity
That the blest gods, as angry with my fancy—
More bright in zeal than the devotion which Cold lips blow to their deities—take thee from me.

CRESSIDA  Have the gods envy?

PANDARUS  Ay, ay, ay, ay, 'tis too plain a case.
CRESSIDA

And is it true that I must go from Troy?

TROILUS

A hateful truth.

CRESSIDA

What, and from Troilus too?

TROILUS

From Troy and Troilus.

CRESSIDA

Is ’t possible?

TROILUS

And suddenly, where injury of chance
Puts back leave-taking, jostles roughly by
All time of pause, rudely beguiles our lips
Of all rejoindure, forcibly prevents
Our locked embrasures, strangles our dear vows
Even in the birth of our own laboring breath.
We two, that with so many thousand sighs
Did buy each other, must poorly sell ourselves
With the rude brevity and discharge of one.
Injurious Time now with a robber’s haste
Crams his rich thiev’ry up, he knows not how.
As many farewells as be stars in heaven,
With distinct breath and consigned kisses to them,
He fumbles up into a loose adieu
And scants us with a single famished kiss,
Distasted with the salt of broken tears.

AENEAS, within

My lord, is the lady ready?

TROILUS

Hark, you are called. Some say the genius
Cries so to him that instantly must die.—
Bid them have patience. She shall come anon.

PANDARUS

Where are my tears? Rain, to lay this wind, or my heart will be blown up by (the root.)

(He exits.)

CRESSIDA

I must, then, to the Grecians?

TROILUS

No remedy.
CRESSIDA

A woeful Cressid 'mongst the merry Greeks.
When shall we see again?

TROILUS

Hear me, (my) love. Be thou but true of heart—

CRESSIDA

I true? How now, what wicked deem is this?

TROILUS

Nay, we must use expostulation kindly,
For it is parting from us.
I speak not “Be thou true” as fearing thee,
For I will throw my glove to Death himself
That there is no maculation in thy heart;
But “Be thou true,” say I, to fashion in My sequent protestation: “Be thou true,
And I will see thee.”

O, you shall be exposed, my lord, to dangers
As infinite as imminent! But I’ll be true.

And I’ll grow friend with danger. Wear this sleeve.

CRESSIDA

And you this glove. When shall I see you?

TROILUS

They exchange love-tokens.

I will corrupt the Grecian sentinels,
To give thee nightly visitation.
But yet, be true.

O heavens! “Be true” again?

TROILUS

Hear why I speak it, love.
The Grecian youths are full of quality,
Their loving well composed, with gift of nature flowing,
And swelling o’er with arts and exercise.
How novelty may move, and parts with (person,)
Alas, a kind of godly jealousy—
Which I beseech you call a virtuous sin—
Makes me afeard.
CRESSIDA  O heavens, you love me not!
TROILUS  Die I a villain then!
   In this I do not call your faith in question
   So mainly as my merit. I cannot sing,
   Nor heel the high lavolt, nor sweeten talk,
   Nor play at subtle games—fair virtues all,
   To which the Grecians are most prompt and pregnant.
   But I can tell that in each grace of these
   There lurks a still and dumb-discursive devil
   That tempts most cunningly. But be not tempted.
CRESSIDA  Do you think I will?
TROILUS  No.
   But something may be done that we will not,
   And sometimes we are devils to ourselves
   When we will tempt the frailty of our powers,
   Presuming on their changeful potency.

AENEAS, within
   Nay, good my lord—
TROILUS  Come, kiss, and let us part.

[They kiss.]

PARIS, within Brother Troilus!
TROILUS, calling  Good brother, come you hither,
   And bring Aeneas and the Grecian with you.
CRESSIDA  My lord, will you be true?
TROILUS
   Who, I? Alas, it is my vice, my fault.
   While others fish with craft for great opinion,
   I with great truth catch mere simplicity.
   Whilst some with cunning gild their copper crowns,
   With truth and plainness I do wear mine bare.
   Fear not my truth. The moral of my wit
   Is “plain and true”; there’s all the reach of it.

〈Enter Aeneas, Paris, Antenor, Deiphobus, and Diomedes.〉
Welcome, Sir Diomed. Here is the lady
Which for Antenor we deliver you.
At the port, lord, I’ll give her to thy hand
And by the way possess thee what she is.
Entreat her fair and, by my soul, fair Greek,
If e’er thou stand at mercy of my sword,
Name Cressid, and thy life shall be as safe
As Priam is in Ilium.

DIOMEDES  Fair Lady Cressid,
So please you, save the thanks this prince expects.
The luster in your eye, heaven in your cheek,
Pleases your fair usage, and to Diomed
You shall be mistress and command him wholly.

TROILUS
Grecian, thou dost not use me courteously,
To shame the zeal of my petition to thee
In praising her. I tell thee, lord of Greece,
She is as far high-soaring o’er thy praises
As thou unworthy to be called her servant.
I charge thee use her well, even for my charge,
For, by the dreadful Pluto, if thou dost not,
Though the great bulk Achilles be thy guard,
I’ll cut thy throat.

DIOMEDES  O, be not moved, Prince Troilus.
Let me be privileged by my place and message
To be a speaker free. When I am hence,
I’ll answer to my lust, and know you, lord,
I’ll nothing do on charge. To her own worth
She shall be prized: but that you say “Be ’t so,”
I speak it in my spirit and honor: “no.”

TROILUS
Come, to the port. I’ll tell thee, Diomed,
This brave shall oft make thee to hide thy head.—
Lady, give me your hand, and, as we walk,
To our own selves bend we our needful talk.

‘Cressida, Diomedes, and Troilus exit.’
PARIS
Hark, Hector’s trumpet.

AENEAS
How have we spent this morning!
The Prince must think me tardy and remiss
That swore to ride before him to the field.

PARIS
’Tis Troilus’ fault. Come, come to field with him.

AENEAS
Yea, with a bridegroom’s fresh alacrity
Let us address to tend on Hector’s heels.
The glory of our Troy doth this day lie
On his fair worth and single chivalry.

They exit.

〈Scene 5〉

Enter Ajax, armed, Achilles, Patroclus, Agamemnon, Menelaus, Ulysses, Nestor, etc.

AGAMEMNON, 〈to Ajax〉
Here art thou in appointment fresh and fair,
Anticipating time with starting courage.
Give with thy trumpet a loud note to Troy,
Thou dreadful Ajax, that the appallèd air
May pierce the head of the great combatant
And hale him hither.

AJAX
Thou, trumpet, there’s my purse.

〈He gives money to Trumpeter.〉

Now crack thy lungs and split thy brazen pipe.
Blow, villain, till thy spherèd bias cheek
Outswell the colic of puffed Aquilon.
Come, stretch thy chest, and let thy eyes spout blood.
Thou blowest for Hector.

〈Sound trumpet.〉
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 4. SC. 5

ULAESS

No trumpet answers.

ACHILLES  ’Tis but early days.

[Enter Cressida and Diomedes.]

AGAMEMNON

Is not yond Diomed with Calchas’ daughter?

ULYSSES  ’Tis he. I ken the manner of his gait.

He rises on the toe; that spirit of his

In aspiration lifts him from the earth.

AGAMEMNON

Is this the Lady Cressid?

DIOMEDES  Even she.

AGAMEMNON

Most dearly welcome to the Greeks, sweet lady.

[He kisses her.]

NESTOR

Our general doth salute you with a kiss.

ULYSSES

Yet is the kindness but particular.

’Twere better she were kissed in general.

NESTOR

And very courtly counsel. I’ll begin.  [He kisses her.]

So much for Nestor.

ACHILLES

I’ll take that winter from your lips, fair lady.

Achilles bids you welcome.  [He kisses her.]

MENELAUS

I had good argument for kissing once.

PATROCLUS, [stepping between Menelaus and Cressida]

But that’s no argument for kissing now,

For thus popped Paris in his hardiment

[And parted thus you and your argument.]  [He kisses her.]
ULYSSES
    O deadly gall and theme of all our scorns,
    For which we lose our heads to gild his horns!

PATROCLUS
    The first was Menelaus’ kiss; this mine.  35
    Patroclus kisses you.  \"He kisses her again.\"

MENELAUS  O, this is trim!

PATROCLUS
    Paris and I kiss evermore for him.

MENELAUS
    I’ll have my kiss, sir.—Lady, by your leave.

CRESSIDA
    In kissing, do you render or receive?  40
    \"MENELAUS\"
    Both take and give.

CRESSIDA  I’ll make my match to live,
        The kiss you take is better than you give.
        Therefore no kiss.

MENELAUS
    I’ll give you boot: I’ll give you three for one.  45

CRESSIDA
    You are an odd man. Give even, or give none.

MENELAUS
    An odd man, lady? Every man is odd.

CRESSIDA
    No, Paris is (not,) for you know ’tis true
    That you are odd, and he is even with you.

MENELAUS
    You fillip me o’ th’ head.  50

CRESSIDA  No, I’ll be sworn.

ULYSSES
    It were no match, your nail against his horn.
    May I, sweet lady, beg a kiss of you?

CRESSIDA
    You may.

ULYSSES  I do desire it.
CRESSIDA

Why, beg two.

ULYSSES

Why, then, for Venus’ sake, give me a kiss
When Helen is a maid again and his.

CRESSIDA

I am your debtor; claim it when ’tis due.

ULYSSES

Never’s my day, and then a kiss of you.

DIOMEDES

Lady, a word. I’ll bring you to your father.

[Diomedes and Cressida talk aside.]

NESTOR

A woman of quick sense.

ULYSSES

Fie, fie upon her!

There’s language in her eye, her cheek, her lip;
Nay, her foot speaks. Her wanton spirits look out
At every joint and motive of her body.
O, these encounterers, so glib of tongue,
That give accosting welcome ere it comes
And wide unclasp the tables of their thoughts
To every tickling reader! Set them down
For sluttish spoils of opportunity
And daughters of the game.

[Dio. and Cress exit.]
Flourish.

ALL

The Trojan’s trumpet.

Enter all of Troy: [Hector, armed, Paris, Aeneas, Helenus, Troilus, and Attendants.]

AGAMEMNON

Yonder comes the troop.

AENEAS

Hail, all the state of Greece! What shall be done
To him that victory commands? Or do you purpose
A victor shall be known? Will you the knights Shall to the edge of all extremity
Pursue each other, or shall they be divided
By any voice or order of the field?
Hector bade ask.

AGAMEMNON Which way would Hector have it?
AENEAS He cares not; he'll obey conditions.

AGAMEMNON ’Tis done like Hector.

ACHILLES But securely done,
A little proudly, and great deal misprizing
The knight opposed.

AENEAS If not Achilles, sir,
What is your name?
AENEAS If not Achilles, nothing.

AGAMEMNON Therefore Achilles. But whate’er, know this:
In the extremity of great and little,
Valor and pride excel themselves in Hector,
The one almost as infinite as all,
The other blank as nothing. Weigh him well,
And that which looks like pride is courtesy.

This Ajax is half made of Hector’s blood,
In love whereof half Hector stays at home;
Half heart, half hand, half Hector comes to seek
This blended knight, half Trojan and half Greek.

ACHILLES A maiden battle, then? O, I perceive you.

[Enter Diomedes.]

AGAMEMNON Here is Sir Diomed.—Go, gentle knight;
Stand by our Ajax. As you and Lord Aeneas
Consent upon the order of their fight,
So be it, either to the uttermost
Or else a breath. The combatants being kin
Half stints their strife before their strokes begin.
Hector and Ajax enter the lists.

They are opposed already.

What Trojan is that same that looks so heavy?

The youngest son of Priam, a true knight,
Not yet mature, yet matchless firm of word,
Speaking (in) deeds, and deedless in his tongue,
Not soon provoked, nor being provoked soon calmed,
His heart and hand both open and both free.

For what he has, he gives; what thinks, he shows;
Yet gives he not till judgment guide his bounty,
Nor dignifies an impair thought with breath;
Manly as Hector, but more dangerous,
For Hector in his blaze of wrath subscribes
To tender objects, but he in heat of action
Is more vindicative than jealous love.
They call him Troilus, and on him erect
A second hope, as fairly built as Hector.

Thus says Aeneas, one that knows the youth
Even to his inches, and with private soul
Did in great Ilium thus translate him to me.

They are in action.

Now, Ajax, hold thine own!
Hector, thou sleep’st. Awake thee!
His blows are well disposed.—There, Ajax!

You must no more.
Princes, enough, so please you.
I am not warm yet. Let us fight again.
As Hector pleases.
HECTOR

Why, then, will I no more.—
Thou art, great lord, my father’s sister’s son,
A cousin-german to great Priam’s seed.
The obligation of our blood forbids
A gory emulation ’twixt us twain.
Were thy commixtion Greek and Trojan so
That thou couldst say “This hand is Grecian all,
And this is Trojan; the sinews of this leg
All Greek, and this all Troy; my mother’s blood
Runs on the dexter cheek, and this sinister
Bounds in my father’s,” by Jove multipotent,
Thou shouldst not bear from me a Greekish member Wherein my sword had not impression made
(Of our rank feud.) But the just gods gainsay
That any (drop) thou borrow’dst from thy mother,
My sacred aunt, should by my mortal sword
Be drained. Let me embrace thee, Ajax.
By him that thunders, thou hast lusty arms!
Hector would have them fall upon him thus.
Cousin, all honor to thee!

AJAX

I thank thee, Hector.
Thou art too gentle and too free a man.
I came to kill thee, cousin, and bear hence
A great addition earnèd in thy death.

HECTOR

Not Neoptolemus so mirable—
On whose bright crest Fame with her loud’st “Oyez”
Cries “This is he”—could promise to himself
A thought of added honor torn from Hector.

AENEAS

There is expectance here from both the sides
What further you will do.

HECTOR

We’ll answer it;
The issue is embracement.—Ajax, farewell.

[They embrace again.]
AJAX

If I might in entreaties find success,
As seld I have the chance, I would desire
My famous cousin to our Grecian tents.

DIOMEDES

’Tis Agamemnon’s wish; and great Achilles
Doth long to see unarmed the valiant Hector.

HECTOR

Aeneas, call my brother Troilus to me,
And signify this loving interview
To the expecters of our Trojan part;
Desire them home.

To Ajax.

Give me thy hand, my cousin.
I will go eat with thee and see your knights.

(Agamemnon and the rest come forward.)

AJAX

Great Agamemnon comes to meet us here.

HECTOR, (to Aeneas)

The worthiest of them tell me name by name;
But for Achilles, my own searching eyes
Shall find him by his large and portly size.

AGAMEMNON

Worthy all arms! As welcome as to one
That would be rid of such an enemy—
(But that’s no welcome. Understand more clear:
What’s past and what’s to come is strewed with husks
And formless ruin of oblivion;
But in this extant moment, faith and troth,
Strained purely from all hollow bias-drawing,
Bids thee, with most divine integrity,) From heart of very heart, great Hector, welcome.

HECTOR

I thank thee, most imperious Agamemnon.
AGAMEMNON, to Troilus

My well-famed lord of Troy, no less to you.

MENELAUS

Let me confirm my princely brother’s greeting:
You brace of warlike brothers, welcome hither.

HECTOR, to Aeneas

Who must we answer?

AENEAS

The noble Menelaus.

HECTOR

O, you, my lord? By Mars his gauntlet, thanks!
Mock not (that I) affect th’ untraded (oath;)
Your quondam wife swears still by Venus’ glove.
She’s well, but bade me not commend her to you.

MENELAUS

Name her not now, sir; she’s a deadly theme.

HECTOR

O, pardon! I offend.

I have, thou gallant Trojan, seen thee oft,
Laboring for destiny, make cruel way
Through ranks of Greekish youth; and I have seen thee,
As hot as Perseus, spur thy Phrygian steed,
Despising many forfeits and subduments,
When thou hast hung (thy) advanced sword i’ th’ air,
Not letting it decline on the declined,
That I have said to some my standers-by “Lo, Jupiter is yonder, dealing life!”
And I have seen thee pause and take thy breath
When that a ring of Greeks have (hemmed) thee in,
Like an Olympian wrestling. This have I seen.
But this thy countenance, still locked in steel,
I never saw till now. I knew thy grandsire
And once fought with him; he was a soldier good,
But, by great Mars, the captain of us all,
Never like thee! O, let an old man embrace thee;
And, worthy warrior, welcome to our tents.
AENEAS, [to Hector] 'Tis the old Nestor.

HECTOR

Let me embrace thee, good old chronicle
That hast so long walked hand in hand with time.
Most reverend Nestor, I am glad to clasp thee.

[They embrace.] "

NESTOR

I would my arms could match thee in contention
(As they contend with thee in courtesy.)

HECTOR I would they could.

NESTOR

Ha! By this white beard, I’d fight with thee tomorrow.
Well, welcome, welcome. I have seen the time!

ULYSSES

I wonder now how yonder city stands
When we have here her base and pillar by us.

HECTOR

I know your favor, Lord Ulysses, well.
Ah, sir, there’s many a Greek and Trojan dead
Since first I saw yourself and Diomed
In Ilium, on your Greekish embassy.

ULYSSES

Sir, I foretold you then what would ensue.
My prophecy is but half his journey yet,
For yonder walls, that pertly front your town,
Yon towers, whose wanton tops do buss the clouds,
Must kiss their own feet.

HECTOR I must not believe you.
There they stand yet, and modestly I think
The fall of every Phrygian stone will cost
A drop of Grecian blood. The end crowns all,
And that old common arbitrator, Time,
Will one day end it.

ULYSSES So to him we leave it.
Most gentle and most valiant Hector, welcome.
After the General, I beseech you next
To feast with me and see me at my tent.
ACHILLES
I shall forestall thee, Lord Ulysses, thou!—
Now, Hector, I have fed mine eyes on thee;
I have with exact view perused thee, Hector,
And quoted joint by joint.

HECTOR Is this Achilles?
ACHILLES I am Achilles.

HECTOR Stand fair, I pray thee. Let me look on thee.

ACHILLES Behold thy fill.

HECTOR Nay, I have done already.

ACHILLES Thou art too brief. I will the second time,
As I would buy thee, view thee limb by limb.

HECTOR O, like a book of sport thou 'lt read me o’er;
But there’s more in me than thou understand’st.

ACHILLES Why dost thou so oppress me with thine eye?

HECTOR Tell me, you heavens, in which part of his body Shall I destroy him—whether there, or there, or that—
That I may give the local wound a name
And make distinct the very breach whereout
Hector’s great spirit flew. Answer me, heavens!

ACHILLES It would discredit the blest gods, proud man,
To answer such a question. Stand again.

HECTOR As to prenominate in nice conjecture
Where thou wilt hit me dead?

ACHILLES I tell thee, yea.

HECTOR Wert thou an oracle to tell me so,
I’d not believe thee. Henceforth guard thee well,
For I’ll not kill thee there, nor there, nor there,
But, by the forge that stithied Mars his helm,
I’ll kill thee everywhere, yea, o’er and o’er.—
You wisest Grecians, pardon me this brag;
His insolence draws folly from my lips.
But I’ll endeavor deeds to match these words,
Or may I never—

AJAX
Do not chafe thee, cousin.—
And you, Achilles, let these threats alone
Till accident or purpose bring you to ’t.
You may have every day enough of Hector
If you have stomach. The general state, I fear,
Can scarce entreat you to be odd with him.

HECTOR, \(to\) Achilles\]
I pray you, let us see you in the field.
We have had pelting wars since you refused
The Grecians’ cause.

ACHILLES
Dost thou entreat me, Hector?
Tomorrow do I meet thee, fell as death;
Tonight all friends.

HECTOR
Thy hand upon that match.

AGAMEMNON
First, all you peers of Greece, go to my tent;
There in the full convive we. Afterwards,
As Hector’s leisure and your bounties shall Concur together, severally entreat him.
\(\text{Beat loud the taborins;}\) let the trumpets blow,
That this great soldier may his welcome know.

\(\text{Flourish.}\)
\(\text{All but Troilus and Ulysses\} exit.}\)

TROILUS
My Lord Ulysses, tell me, I beseech you,
In what place of the field doth Calchas keep?

ULYSSES
At Menelaus’ tent, most princely Troilus.
There Diomed doth feast with him tonight,
Who neither looks upon the heaven nor Earth,
But gives all gaze and bent of amorous view
On the fair Cressid.

TROILUS

Shall I, sweet lord, be bound to you so much,
After we part from Agamemnon’s tent,
To bring me thither?

You shall command me, sir.

ULYSSES

(As) gentle tell me, of what honor was
This Cressida in Troy? Had she no lover there
That wails her absence?

TROILUS

O sir, to such as boasting show their scars
A mock is due. Will you walk on, my lord?
She was beloved, (she loved;) she is, and doth;
But still sweet love is food for Fortune’s tooth.

They exit.

Scene 1

Enter Achilles and Patroclus.

ACHILLES
I’ll heat his blood with Greekish wine tonight,
Which with my scimitar I’ll cool tomorrow.
Patroclus, let us feast him to the height.

PATROCLUS
Here comes Thersites.

Enter Thersites.

ACHILLES
How now, thou (core) of envy? Thou crusty ‘botch’ of nature, what’s the news?

THERSITES
Why, thou picture of what thou seemest and idol of idiot-worshippers, here’s a letter for thee.

ACHILLES
From whence, fragment?

THERSITES
Why, thou full dish of fool, from Troy. Achilles takes the letter and moves aside to read it.

PATROCLUS
Who keeps the tent now?

THERSITES
The surgeon’s box or the patient’s wound.

PATROCLUS
Well said, adversity. And what need these tricks?

THERSITES
Prithee, be silent, (boy.) I profit not by thy talk. Thou art said to be Achilles’ male varlet.

PATROCLUS
“Male varlet,” you rogue! What’s that?

THERSITES
Why, his masculine whore. Now the rotten diseases of the south, the guts-gripping, ruptures,
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 5. SC. 1

PATROCLUS  Why, thou damnable box of envy, thou, what means thou to curse thus?

THERSITES  Do I curse thee?

PATROCLUS  Why, no, you ruinous butt, you whoreson indistinguishable cur, no.

THERSITES  No? Why art thou then exasperate, thou idle immaterial skein of sleave-silk, thou green sarsenet flap for a sore eye, thou tassel of a prodigal’s purse, thou? Ah, how the poor world is pestered with such waterflies, diminutives of nature!

Out, gall!

Finch egg!

ACHILLES, [coming forward]

My sweet Patroclus, I am thwarted quite From my great purpose in tomorrow’s battle.

Here is a letter from Queen Hecuba,

A token from her daughter, my fair love,

Both taxing me and gaging me to keep

An oath that I have sworn. I will not break it.

Fall, Greeks; fail, fame; honor, or go or stay;

My major vow lies here; this I’ll obey.

Come, come, Thersites, help to trim my tent.

This night in banqueting must all be spent.

Away, Patroclus.  [He exits [with Patroclus.]

THERSITES  With too much blood and too little brain, these two may run mad; but if with too much brain and too little blood they do, I’ll be a curer of madmen.

Here’s Agamemnon, an honest fellow enough and one that loves quails, but he has not so much brain as earwax. And the goodly transformation of Jupiter there, his brother, the bull—the primitive statue and oblique memorial of cuckolds, a thrifty shoeing-horn in a chain, hanging at his brother’s leg—to what form but that he is should wit larded with malice and malice (forced) with wit turn him to? To an ass were nothing; he is both ass and ox. To an ox were nothing; he is both ox and ass. To be a dog, a mule, a cat, a fitchew, a toad, a lizard, an owl, a puttock, or a herring without a roe, I would not care; but to be Menelaus! I would conspire against destiny. Ask me (not) what I would be, if I were not Thersites, for I care not to be the louse of a lazar so I were not Menelaus.

Enter Hector, Troilus, Ajax, Agamemnon, Ulysses, Nestor, Menelaus, and Diomedes, with lights.

Heyday! Sprites and fires!

AGAMEMNON  We go wrong, we go wrong.
AJAX  No, yonder—’tis there, where we see the lights.
HECTOR  I trouble you.
AJAX  No, not a whit.

(Enter Achilles.)

ULYSSES, to Hector  Here comes himself to guide you.
ACHILLES  Welcome, brave Hector. Welcome, princes all.
AGAMEMNON, to Hector  So now, fair prince of Troy, I bid good night.
Ajax commands the guard to tend on you.
HECTOR  Thanks, and good night to the Greeks’ general.
MENELAUS  Good night, my lord.
HECTOR  Good night, sweet lord

Menelaus.
THERSITES, aside\1 Sweet draught. “Sweet,” quoth he?
  Sweet sink, sweet sewer.

ACHILLES
  Good night and welcome, both (at once), to those
  That go or tarry.

AGAMEMNON  Good night.

_Agamemnon and Menelaus exit._

ACHILLES
  Old Nestor tarries, and you too, Diomed.

DIOMEDES
  I cannot, lord. I have important business,
  The tide whereof is now.—Good night, great Hector.

HECTOR  Give me your hand.

ULYSSES, aside to Troilus
  Follow his torch; he goes to Calchas’ tent.

I’ll keep you company.

TROILUS  Sweet sir, you honor me.

HECTOR
  And so, good night.

_Diomedes exits, followed by Troilus and Ulysses._

ACHILLES
  Come, come, enter my tent.

_Achilles, Ajax, Nestor, and Hector exit._

THERSITES  That same Diomed’s a false-hearted rogue, a most unjust knave. I will no more trust him when he leers than I will a serpent when he hisses. He will spend his mouth and promise like Brabbler the hound, but when he performs, astronomers foretell it; it is prodigious, there will come some change. The sun borrows of the moon when Diomed keeps his word. I will rather leave to see Hector than not to dog him. They say he keeps a Trojan drab and uses the traitor Calchas (his) tent.

I’ll after. Nothing but lechery! All incontinent varlets!

_He exits._
Scene 2

Enter Diomedes.

DIOMEDES  What, are you up here, ho? Speak.

CALCHAS, within  Who calls?

DIOMEDES  Diomed. Calchas, I think? Where’s your daughter?

CALCHAS, within  She comes to you.

〈Enter Troilus and Ulysses, at a distance, and then, apart from them, Thersites.〉

ULYSSES, aside to Troilus

Stand where the torch may not discover us.

Enter Cressida.

TROILUS, aside to Ulysses

Cressid comes forth to him.

DIOMEDES  How now, my charge?

CRESSIDA

Now, my sweet guardian. Hark, a word with you. 〈She whispers to him.〉

TROILUS, aside  Yea, so familiar?

ULYSSES, aside to Troilus  She will sing any man at first sight.

THERSITES, aside  And any man may sing her, if he can take her clef. She’s noted.

DIOMEDES  Will you remember?

CRESSIDA  Remember? Yes.

DIOMEDES  Nay, but do, then, and let your mind be coupled with your words.

TROILUS, aside  What (should) she remember?

ULYSSES, aside to Troilus  List!

CRESSIDA

Sweet honey Greek, tempt me no more to folly.

THERSITES, aside  Roguery!

DIOMEDES  Nay, then—CRESSIDA: I'll tell you what—

DIOMEDES

Foh, foh, come, tell a pin! You are forsworn.

CRESSIDA

In faith, I cannot. What would you have me do?

THERSITES, {aside} A juggling trick: to be secretly open!

DIOMEDES

What did you swear you would bestow on me?

CRESSIDA

I prithee, do not hold me to mine oath.

Bid me do anything but that, sweet Greek.

DIOMEDES

Good night.

TROILUS, {aside} Hold, patience!

ULYSSES, {aside to Troilus} How now, Trojan?

CRESSIDA: Diomed—

DIOMEDES

No, no, good night. I’ll be your fool no more.

TROILUS, {aside} Thy better must.

CRESSIDA: Hark, a word in your ear.

{She whispers to him.}

TROILUS, {aside} O plague and madness!

ULYSSES, {aside to Troilus} You are moved, prince. Let us depart, I pray (you,)

Lest your displeasure should enlarge itself

To wrathful terms. This place is dangerous;

The time right deadly. I beseech you, go.

TROILUS, {aside to Ulysses} Behold, I pray you.

ULYSSES, {aside to Troilus} (Nay,) good my lord, go off.

You flow to great {distraction.} Come, my lord.

TROILUS, {aside to Ulysses} I prithee, stay.

ULYSSES, {aside to Troilus} You have not patience. Come.

TROILUS, {aside to Ulysses} I pray you, stay. By hell and all hell’s torments,

I will not speak a word.
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 5. SC. 2

DIOMEDES
And so good night. \(\text{He starts to leave.}\) 50

CRESSIDA Nay, but you part in anger.

TROILUS, \(\text{aside}\) Doth that grieve thee? O withered truth!

ULYSSES, \(\text{aside to Troilus}\)
How now, my lord?

TROILUS, \(\text{aside to Ulysses}\)
By Jove, I will be patient. 55

CRESSIDA Guardian! Why, Greek!

DIOMEDES Foh foh! \(\text{(Adieu.)}\) You palter.

CRESSIDA
In faith, I do not. Come hither once again.

ULYSSES, \(\text{aside to Troilus}\)
You shake, my lord, at something. Will you go?

You will break out. 60

TROILUS, \(\text{aside}\) She strokes his cheek!

ULYSSES, \(\text{aside to Troilus}\)
Come, come.

TROILUS, \(\text{aside to Ulysses}\)

Nay, stay. By Jove, I will not speak a word.

There is between my will and all offenses

A guard of patience. Stay a little while. 65

THERSITES, \(\text{aside}\) How the devil Luxury, with his fat rump and potato finger, tickles \(\text{these}\) together.

Fry, lechery, fry!

DIOMEDES \(\text{(But) will you, then?}\)

CRESSIDA In faith, I will, \(\text{la.}\) Never trust me else. 70

DIOMEDES
Give me some token for the surety of it.

CRESSIDA I'll fetch you one. \(\text{She exits.}\)

ULYSSES, \(\text{aside to Troilus}\)
You have sworn patience.

TROILUS, \(\text{aside to Ulysses}\)
Fear me not, my lord.

I will not be myself nor have cognition 75

Of what I feel. I am all patience.
Enter Cressida with Troilus’s sleeve.

THERSITES, aside Now the pledge, now, now, now!

CRESSIDA, giving the sleeve Here, Diomed. Keep this sleeve.

TROILUS, aside O beauty, where is thy faith?

ULYSSES, aside to Troilus My lord—

TROILUS, aside to Ulysses (I will be patient; outwardly I will.

CRESSIDA)

>You look upon that sleeve? Behold it well.

He loved me—O false wench!—Give ’t me again.

She snatches the sleeve from Diomedes.

DIOMEDES Whose was ’t?

CRESSIDA

It is no matter, now I ha ’t again.

I will not meet with you tomorrow night.

I prithee, Diomed, visit me no more.

THERSITES, aside Now she sharpens. Well said, whetstone.

DIOMEDES I shall have it.

CRESSIDA What, this?

DIOMEDES Ay, that.

CRESSIDA

O all you gods!—O pretty, pretty pledge!

Thy master now lies thinking on his bed

Of thee and me, and sighs, and takes my glove,

And gives memorial dainty kisses to it

As I kiss thee.

He grabs the sleeve, and she tries to retrieve it.

DIOMEDES Nay, do not snatch it from me.

CRESSIDA

He that takes that doth take my heart withal.

DIOMEDES

I had your heart before. This follows it.

TROILUS, aside I did swear patience.
〈CRESSIDA〉
You shall not have it, Diomed, faith, you shall not.
I'll give you something else.

DIOMEDES I will have this. Whose was it?

CRESSIDA It is no matter.

DIOMEDES Come, tell me whose it was.

CRESSIDA
’Twas one’s that loved me better than you will.
But now you have it, take it.

DIOMEDES Whose was it?

CRESSIDA By all Diana’s waiting-women yond,
And by herself, I will not tell you whose.

DIOMEDES Tomorrow will I wear it on my helm
And grieve his spirit that dares not challenge it.

TROILUS, 〈aside〉
Wert thou the devil and wor’st it on thy horn,
It should be challenged.

CRESSIDA
Well, well, ’tis done, ’tis past. And yet it is not.
I will not keep my word.

DIOMEDES Why, then, farewell.
Thou never shalt mock Diomed again.

〈He starts to leave.〉

CRESSIDA
You shall not go. One cannot speak a word
But it straight starts you.

DIOMEDES I do not like this fooling.

〈TROILUS, aside〉
Nor I, by Pluto! But that that likes not you Pleases me best.

DIOMEDES What, shall I come? The hour?

CRESSIDA
Ay, come.—O Jove!—Do, come.—I shall be plagued.
DIOMEDES
Farewell, till then.

CRESSIDA
Good night. I prithee, come.—

(He exits.)

Troilus, farewell. One eye yet looks on thee,
But with my heart the other eye doth see.
Ah, poor our sex! This fault in us I find:
The error of our eye directs our mind.
What error leads must err. O, then conclude:
Minds swayed by eyes are full of turpitude. She exits.

THERSITES, aside
A proof of strength she could not publish more,
Unless she said “My mind is now turned whore.”

ULYSSES
All’s done, my lord.

TROILUS
It is.

ULYSSES
Why stay we then?

TROILUS
To make a recoradation to my soul
Of every syllable that here was spoke.
But if I tell how these two did (co-act,)
Shall I not lie in publishing a truth?
Sith yet there is a credence in my heart,
An esperance so obstinately strong.
That doth invert th’ attest of eyes and ears,
As if those organs (had deceptive) functions,
Created only to calumniate.
Was Cressid here?

ULYSSES
I cannot conjure, Trojan.

TROILUS
She was not, sure.

ULYSSES
Most sure she was.

TROILUS
Why, my negation hath no taste of madness.

ULYSSES
Nor mine, my lord. Cressid was here but now.
TROILUS

Let it not be believed for womanhood!
Think, we had mothers. Do not give advantage
To stubborn critics, apt, without a theme
For depravation, to square the general sex
By Cressid’s rule. Rather, think this not Cressid.

ULYSSES

What hath she done, prince, that can (soil) our mothers?

TROILUS

Nothing at all, unless that this were she.

THERSITES, aside

Will he swagger himself out on ’s own eyes?

TROILUS

This she? No, this is Diomed’s Cressida.
If beauty have a soul, this is not she;
If souls guide vows, if vows be sanctimonies,
If sanctimony be the gods’ delight,
If there be rule in unity itself,
This (is) not she. O madness of discourse,
That cause sets up with and against itself!
Bifold authority, where reason can revolt
Without perdition, and loss assume all reason
Without revolt. This is and is not Cressid.
Within my soul there doth conduce a fight
Of this strange nature, that a thing inseparate
Divides more wider than the sky and Earth,
And yet the spacious breadth of this division
Admits no orifex for a point as subtle
As Ariachne’s broken woof to enter.
Instance, O instance, strong as Pluto’s gates,
Cressid is mine, tied with the bonds of heaven;
Instance, O instance, strong as heaven itself,
The bonds of heaven are slipped, dissolved, and loosed,
And with another knot, (five-finger-tied,)
The fractions of her faith, ors of her love,
The fragments, scraps, the bits and greasy relics
Of her o’er-eaten faith are given to Diomed.

ULYSSES
May worthy Troilus be half attached
With that which here his passion doth express?

TROILUS
Ay, Greek, and that shall be divulgd well
In characters as red as Mars his heart
Inflamed with Venus. Never did young man fancy
With so eternal and so fixed a soul.
Hark, Greek: as much \( \text{as} \) I do Cressid love,
So much by weight hate I her Diomed.
That sleeve is mine that he’ll bear on his helm.
Were it a casque composed by Vulcan’s skill,
My sword should bite it. Not the dreadful spout
Which shipmen do the hurricano call,
Constringed in mass by the almighty sun,
Shall dizzy with more clamor Neptune’s ear
In his descent than shall my prompted sword
Falling on Diomed.

THERSITES, \( \text{aside} \) He’ll tickle it for his concupy.

TROILUS
O Cressid! O false Cressid! False, false, false!
Let all untruths stand by thy stainèd name,
And they’ll seem glorious.

ULYSSES O, contain yourself.
Your passion draws ears hither.

Enter Aeneas.

AENEAS, \( \text{to Troilus} \)
I have been seeking you this hour, my lord.
Hector, by this, is arming him in Troy.
Ajax, your guard, stays to conduct you home.

TROILUS
Have with you, prince.—My courteous lord, adieu.—
Farewell, revolted fair!—And, Diomed,
Stand fast, and wear a castle on thy head!

ULYSSES  I’ll bring you to the gates.

TROILUS  Accept distracted thanks.

_Troilus, Aeneas, and Ulysses exit._

THERSITES  Would I could meet that rogue Diomed! I would croak like a raven; I would bode, I would bode, Patroclus will give me anything for the intelligence of this whore. The parrot will not do more for an almond than he for a commodious drab.
Lechery, lechery, still wars and lechery! Nothing else holds fashion. A burning devil take them!

_He exits._

Scene 3

_Enter Hector, armed, _and Andromache._

ANDROMACHE

When was my lord so much ungently tempered
To stop his ears against admonishment?

HECTOR

Unarm, unarm, and do not fight today.

You train me to offend you. Get you in.

By all the everlasting gods, I’ll go!

ANDROMACHE

My dreams will sure prove ominous to the day.

HECTOR

No more, I say.

_Enter Cassandra._

CASSANDRA  Where is my brother Hector?

ANDROMACHE

Here, sister, armed and bloody in intent.

Consort with me in loud and dear petition;
Pursue we him on knees. For I have dreamt
Of bloody turbulence, and this whole night
Hath nothing been but shapes and forms of slaughter.

CASSANDRA
O, ’tis true!

HECTOR, [calling out] Ho! Bid my trumpet sound!

〈CASSANDRA〉

No notes of sally, for the heavens, sweet brother!

HECTOR
Begone, I say. The gods have heard me swear.

CASSANDRA
The gods are deaf to hot and peevish vows.
They are polluted off’rings more abhorred
Than spotted livers in the sacrifice.

ANDROMACHE, [to Hector]
O, be persuaded! Do not count it holy 〈To hurt by being just. It is as lawful,
For we would give much, to use violent thefts
And rob in the behalf of charity.

CASSANDRA〉
It is the purpose that makes strong the vow,
But vows to every purpose must not hold.

Unarm, sweet Hector.

HECTOR
Hold you still, I say.
Mine honor keeps the weather of my fate.
Life every man holds dear, but the dear man
Holds honor far more precious-dear than life.

Enter Troilus, [armed.]
And tempt not yet the brushes of the war.
Unarm thee, go, and doubt thou not, brave boy,
I’ll stand today for thee and me and Troy.

TROILUS

Brother, you have a vice of mercy in you
Which better fits a lion than a man.

HECTOR

What vice is that? Good Troilus, chide me for it.

TROILUS

When many times the captive Grecian falls,
Even in the fan and wind of your fair sword,
You bid them rise and live.

HECTOR

O, ’tis fair play.
Fool’s play, by heaven. Hector.

TROILUS

For th’ love of all the gods,
Let’s leave the hermit Pity with our mother,
And when we have our armors buckled on,
The venomed Vengeance ride upon our swords,
Spur them to ruthless work, rein them from ruth.

HECTOR

Fie, savage, fie!

TROILUS

Hector, then ’tis wars.

HECTOR

Troilus, I would not have you fight today.

TROILUS

Who should withhold me?

Not fate, obedience, nor the hand of Mars,
Beck’ning with fiery truncheon my retire;
Not Priamus and Hecuba on knees,
Their eyes o’er-gallèd with recourse of tears;
Nor you, my brother, with your true sword drawn
Opposed to hinder me, should stop my way,
(But by my ruin.)
Enter Priam and Cassandra.

CASSANDRA, [indicating Hector]

Lay hold upon him, Priam; hold him fast. He is thy crutch. Now if thou loose thy stay, Thou on him leaning, and all Troy on thee, Fall all together.

PRIAM

Come, Hector, come. Go back.

Lay hold upon him, Priam; hold him fast.

He is thy crutch. Now if thou loose thy stay,

Thou on him leaning, and all Troy on thee,

Fall all together.

PRIAM

Thy wife hath dreamt, thy mother hath had visions,

Cassandra doth foresee, and I myself

Am like a prophet suddenly enrapt

To tell thee that this day is ominous.

Therefore, come back.

HECTOR

Aeneas is afield,

And I do stand engaged to many Greeks,

Even in the faith of valor, to appear

This morning to them.

PRIAM

Ay, but thou shalt not go.

HECTOR

I must not break my faith.

You know me dutiful; therefore, dear sir,

Let me not shame respect, but give me leave

To take that course by your consent and voice

Which you do here forbid me, royal Priam.

CASSANDRA

O Priam, yield not to him!

ANDROMACHE

Do not, dear father.

HECTOR

Andromache, I am offended with you.

Upon the love you bear me, get you in.

Andromache exits.

TROILUS

This foolish, dreaming, superstitious girl

Makes all these bodements.

CASSANDRA

O farewell, dear Hector.

Look how thou diest! Look how thy eye turns pale!

Look how thy wounds do bleed at many vents!
Hark, how Troy roars, how Hecuba cries out,
How poor Andromache shrills her (dolor) forth!
Behold, (distraction,) frenzy, and amazement,
Like witless antics, one another meet,
And all cry “Hector! Hector’s dead! O, Hector!”

TROILUS    Away, away!

CASSANDRA

Farewell.—Yet soft! Hector, I take my leave.
Thou dost thyself and all our Troy deceive.  <She exits.>

HECTOR

You are amazed, my liege, at her exclaim.
Go in and cheer the town. We’ll forth and fight,
Do deeds worth praise, and tell you them at night.

PRIAM

Farewell. The gods with safety stand about thee!

’Tis Hector and Priam exit at separate doors.

Alarum.

TROILUS

They are at it, hark! Proud Diomed, believe,
I come to lose my arm or win my sleeve.

Enter Pandarus,  [with a paper.]

PANDARUS    Do you hear, my lord? Do you hear?

TROILUS    What now?

PANDARUS    Here’s a letter come from yond poor girl.

TROILUS    Let me read.  [He reads.]

PANDARUS    A whoreson phthisic, a whoreson rascally phthisic so troubles me, and the foolish fortune of this girl, and what one thing, what another, that I shall leave you one o’ these days. And I have a rheum in mine eyes too, and such an ache in my bones that, unless a man were cursed, I cannot tell what to think on ’t.—What says she there?

TROILUS

Words, words, mere words, no matter from the heart.
Th’ effect doth operate another way.
Go, wind, to wind! There turn and change together.

“He tears up the paper and throws the pieces in the air.”

My love with words and errors still she feeds,
But edifies another with her deeds.

They exit.

Scene 4

ALARUM. Excursions. Enter Thersites.

THERSITES  Now they are clapper-clawing one another.

I’ll go look on. That dissembling abominable varlet,
Diomed, has got that same scurvish doting foolish
(young) knave’s sleeve of Troy there in his helm.
I would fain see them meet, that that same young Trojan ass that loves the whore there might send that Greekish whoremasterly villain with the sleeve back to the dissembling luxurious drab, of a sleeveless errand. O’ th’ t’other side, the policy of those crafty swearing rascals—that stale old mouse-eaten dry cheese, Nestor, and that same dog-fox, Ulysses—is not worth a blackberry. They set me up, in policy, that mongrel cur, Ajax, against that dog of as bad a kind, Achilles. And now is the cur Ajax prouder than the cur Achilles, and will not arm today, whereupon the Grecians begin to proclaim barbarism, and policy grows into an ill opinion.

Enter Diomedes, and Troilus pursuing him.

Soft! Here comes sleeve and t’ other.

Thersites moves aside.

TROILUS, to Diomedes

Fly not, for shouldst thou take the river Styx
I would swim after.

DIOMEDES  Thou dost miscall retire.
I do not fly, but advantageous care
Withdrew me from the odds of multitude.
Have at thee!

THRISITES Hold thy whore, Grecian! Now for thy whore, Trojan! Now the sleeve, now the sleeve!

"Diomedes and Troilus exit fighting."

Enter Hector.

HECTOR What art (thou,) Greek? Art thou for Hector’s match?
Art thou of blood and honor?

THRISITES No, no, I am a rascal, a scurvy railing knave, a very filthy rogue.

HECTOR I do believe thee. Live.

THRISITES God-a-mercy, that thou wilt believe me!
But a plague break thy neck for frightening me!
What’s become of the wenching rogues? I think they have swallowed one another. I would laugh at that miracle—yet, in a sort, lechery eats itself. I’ll seek them.

"He exits."

THRISITES "Scene 5"

"Enter Diomedes and Servingman."

DIOMEDES Go, go, my servant, take thou Troilus’ horse;
Present the fair steed to my Lady Cressid.
Fellow, commend my service to her beauty.
Tell her I have chastised the amorous Trojan
And am her knight by proof.

MAN I go, my lord. "He exits."

"Enter Agamemnon."
AGAMEMNON

Renew, renew! The fierce Polydamas
Hath beat down Menon; bastard Margareton
Hath Doreus prisoner,
And stands colossus-wise, waving his beam
Upon the pashèd corse of the kings
Epistrophus and Cедius. Polyxenes is slain,
Amphimachus and Thoas deadly hurt,
Patroclus ta’en or slain, and Palamedes
Sore hurt and bruised. The dreadful Sagittary
Appals our numbers. Haste we, Diomed,
To reinforcement, or we perish all.

Enter Nestor, \[with Soldiers bearing the body of Patroclus.\]

NESTOR

Go, bear Patroclus’ body to Achilles,
And bid the snail-paced Ajax arm for shame.

\[Soldiers exit with Patroclus’s body.\]

There is a thousand Hectors in the field.
Now here he fights on Galathe his horse,
And \[here\] lacks work; anon he’s there afoot
And there they fly or die, like \(\text{scalèd}\) schools
Before the belching whale; then is he yonder,
And there the strawy Greeks, ripe for his edge,
Fall down before him like a mower’s swath.
Here, there, and everywhere he leaves and takes,
Dexterity so obeying appetite
That what he will he does, and does so much
That proof is called impossibility.

Enter Ulysses.

ULYSSES

O, courage, courage, princes! Great Achilles
Is arming, weeping, cursing, vowing vengeance.
Patroclus’ wounds have roused his drowsy blood,
Together with his mangled Myrmidons,
That noseless, handless, hacked and chipped, come to him,
Crying on Hector. Ajax hath lost a friend
And foams at mouth, and he is armed and at it,
Roaring for Troilus, who hath done today
Mad and fantastic execution,
Engaging and redeeming of himself
With such a careless force and forceless care
As if that (luck,) in very spite of cunning,
Bade him win all.

Enter Ajax.

(AJAX) Troilus, thou coward Troilus! He exits. 45
DIOMEDES Ay, there, there! He exits.
NESTOR So, so, we draw together.

Enter Achilles.

ACHILLES Where is this Hector?—
Come, come, thou boy-queller, show thy face!
Know what it is to meet Achilles angry.
Hector! Where’s Hector? I will none but Hector.
He exits, ‘with the others.’

Scene 6

Enter Ajax.

(AJAX)
Troilus, thou coward Troilus, show thy head!

Enter Diomedes.

(DIOMEDES) Troilus, I say! Where’s Troilus?
AJAX What wouldst thou?
DIOMEDES I would correct him.
AJAX Were I the General, thou shouldst have my office
Ere that correction.—Troilus, I say! What, Troilus!
Enter Troilus.

TROILUS

O traitor Diomed! Turn thy false face, thou traitor,
And pay the life thou owest me for my horse!

DIOMEDES  Ha! Art thou there?

AJAX  I’ll fight with him alone. Stand, Diomed.

DIOMEDES  He is my prize. I will not look upon.

TROILUS  Come, both you cogging Greeks. Have at you both!

(Enter Hector.)

(Troilus exits, fighting Diomedes and Ajax.)

HECTOR  Yea, Troilus? O, well fought, my youngest brother!

Enter Achilles.

(ACHILLES)

Now do I see thee. Ha! Have at thee, Hector!

HECTOR  Pause if thou wilt.

They fight.

ACHILLES  I do disdain thy courtesy, proud Trojan.
Be happy that my arms are out of use.
My rest and negligence befriends thee now,
But thou anon shalt hear of me again;
Till when, go seek thy fortune.

He exits.

HECTOR  Fare thee well.

I would have been much more a fresher man
Had I expected thee.

Enter Troilus.

How now, my brother?
Troilus and Cressida

ACT 5. SC. 7

TROILUS

Ajax hath ta’en Aeneas. Shall it be?
No, by the flame of yonder glorious heaven,
He shall not carry him. I’ll be ta’en too
Or bring him off. Fate, hear me what I say!
I reck not though I end my life today.

He exits.

Enter one in 'Greek' armor.

HECTOR

Stand, stand, thou Greek! Thou art a goodly mark.
No? Wilt thou not? I like thy armor well.
I’ll frush it and unlock the rivets all,
But I’ll be master of it.
(The Greek exits.)

Wilt thou not, beast, abide?
Why then, fly on. I’ll hunt thee for thy hide.

He exits.

Scene 7

Enter Achilles, with Myrmidons.

ACHILLES

Come here about me, you my Myrmidons.
Mark what I say. Attend me where I wheel.
Strike not a stroke, but keep yourselves in breath,
And, when I have the bloody Hector found,
Empale him with your weapons round about.
In fellest manner execute your arms.
Follow me, sirs, and my proceedings eye.
It is decreed Hector the great must die.

(They) exit.
Scene 8

Enter Thersites; then Menelaus fighting Paris.

Thersites The cuckold and the cuckold-maker are at it. Now, bull! Now, dog! Loo, Paris, loo! Now, my double-horned Spartan! Loo, Paris, loo! The bull has the game. Ware horns, ho!

Paris and Menelaus exit, fighting.

Enter Bastard.

Bastard Turn, slave, and fight.

Thersites What art thou?

Bastard A bastard son of Priam’s.

Thersites I am a bastard too. I love bastards. I am bastard begot, bastard instructed, bastard in mind, bastard in valor, in everything illegitimate. One bear will not bite another, and wherefore should one bastard? Take heed: the quarrel’s most ominous to us. If the son of a whore fight for a whore, he tempts judgment. Farewell, bastard. He exits.

Bastard The devil take thee, coward! He exits.

Scene 9

Enter Hector, with the body of the Greek in armor.

Hector

Most putrefied core, so fair without, Thy goodly armor thus hath cost thy life. Now is my day’s work done. I’ll take my breath. Rest, sword; thou hast thy fill of blood and death. He begins to disarm.

Enter Achilles and his Myrmidons.
ACT 5. SC. 10

ACHILLES

Look, Hector, how the sun begins to set,
How ugly night comes breathing at his heels.
Even with the vail and dark’ning of the sun
To close the day up, Hector’s life is done.

HECTOR

I am unarmed. Forgo this vantage, Greek.

ACHILLES

Strike, fellows, strike! This is the man I seek.

[The Myrmidons kill Hector.]

So, Ilium, fall thou next! Come, Troy, sink down!

A MYRMIDON

The (Trojan trumpets) sound the like, my lord.

ACHILLES

The dragon wing of night o’erspreads the Earth
And, stickler-like, the armies separates.
My half-supped sword, that frankly would have fed,
Pleased with this dainty bait, thus goes to bed.

[He sheaths his sword.]

Come, tie his body to my horse’s tail;
Along the field I will the Trojan trail.

They exit [with the bodies.]

[Scene 10]

[Sound retreat.] Enter Agamemnon, Ajax, Menelaus, Nestor, Diomedes, and the rest, marching [to the beat of drums.] [Shout [within.]]

AGAMEMNON    Hark, hark, what (shout) is this?

NESTOR     Peace, drums! [The drums cease.]
SOLDIERS, within

Achilles! Achilles! Hector’s slain! Achilles!

DIOMEDES

The bruit is Hector’s slain, and by Achilles.

AJAX

If it be so, yet bragless let it be.

Great Hector was as good a man as he.

AGAMEMNON

March patiently along. Let one be sent

To pray Achilles see us at our tent.

If in his death the gods have us befriended,

Great Troy is ours, and our sharp wars are ended.

They exit, marching."

Enter Aeneas, Paris, Antenor, Deiphobus, and Trojan soldiers.

AENEAS

Stand, ho! Yet are we masters of the field.

Never go home; here starve we out the night.

Enter Troilus.

TROILUS

Hector is slain.

ALL

Hector! The gods forbid!

TROILUS

He’s dead, and at the murderer’s horse’s tail,

In beastly sort, dragged through the shameful field.

Frown on, you heavens; effect your rage with speed.

Sit, gods, upon your thrones, and smite at Troy!

I say at once: let your brief plagues be mercy,

And linger not our sure destructions on!

AENEAS

My lord, you do discomfort all the host.
TROILUS

You understand me not that tell me so.
I do not speak of flight, of fear, of death,
But dare all imminence that gods and men
Address their dangers in. Hector is gone. 15
Who shall tell Priam so, or Hecuba?
Let him that will a screech-owl aye be called
Go into Troy and say their Hector’s dead.
There is a word will Priam turn to stone,
Make wells and Niobes of the maids and wives, 20
Cold statues of the youth and, in a word, Scare Troy out of itself. (But march away.
Hector is dead.) There is no more to say.
Stay yet. You vile abominable tents,
Thus proudly pitched upon our Phrygian plains,
Let Titan rise as early as he dare,
I’ll through and through you! And, thou great-sized coward,
No space of earth shall sunder our two hates.
I’ll haunt thee like a wicked conscience still, 30
That moldeth goblins swift as frenzy’s thoughts.
Strike a free march to Troy! With comfort go.
Hope of revenge shall hide our inward woe.

Enter Pandarus.

PANDARUS
   But hear you, hear you!

TROILUS

Hence, broker, lackey! (Ignomy and) shame 35
Pursue thy life, and live aye with thy name!

All but Pandarus exit.

PANDARUS

A goodly medicine for my aching bones! O world, world, (world)! Thus is the poor agent despised.
O traitors and bawds, how earnestly are you set a-work, and how ill required! Why should 40 our endeavor be so loved and the performance so loathed? What verse for it? What instance for it?
Let me see:

   Full merrily the humble-bee doth sing,
   Till he hath lost his honey and his sting;
   And being once subdued in arméd tail,
   Sweet honey and sweet notes together fail.

Good traders in the flesh, set this in your painted cloths:

As many as be here of panders’ hall,
   Your eyes, half out, weep out at Pandar’s fall;
Or if you cannot weep, yet give some groans,
   Though not for me, yet for (your) aching bones.
Brethren and sisters of the hold-door trade,
   Some two months hence my will shall here be made.
It should be now, but that my fear is this:
   Some gallèd goose of Winchester would hiss.
Till then I’ll sweat and seek about for eases,
And at that time bequeath you my diseases.

[He exits.]
